Abstract

The Emerging Technology Collection at Carleton University is a successful collaboration between three units on campus: the Library, the Discovery Centre for Undergraduate Research and Engagement, and Information Technology Services. The Emerging Technology Collection began as a pilot project in January 2015 to circulate Raspberry Pis and Arduinos at the request of faculty in the Engineering Department. Due to the success of the pilot project, the collection now provides access to over 70 pieces of technology equipment for loan to support experiential learning for students. Development and implementation of the Collection is discussed. The Emerging Technology Collection has provided a number of academic benefits, such as innovative student projects, outreach and faculty engagement, and community engagement. There have also been benefits for the Library including promotion of the Library collection, continuing education for Library staff, and significant usage of the Emerging Technology Collection. Some of the challenges faced during the development of this collection are analyzed, including the need to register certain products, maintenance and upkeep of the collection, damage and replacement costs, and promoting the use of emerging technology across disciplines. This successful project underscores the value of a shared space where different units on campus can work together to develop and deliver an innovative new service. Finally, this project demonstrates the value of innovation in academic libraries that are responsive to new developments and deliver useful services.

Bold Minds Margaret Weaver, Leo Appleton, 2020-11-10 Are librarians and libraries relevant in the 21st century This is a fundamental question and one that presents differing opinions across the many diverse information sectors If there is a continuing need for libraries and for librarians then how do library leaders obtain strategic support when there appears to be a lack of clarity or understanding about the very purpose of libraries at a time when economically libraries are under pressure to develop new business models and be more commercially focussed Bold Minds Library leadership in a time of disruption brings together international leaders who frame many aspects of the current library provision and who carry responsibility for the library models of the future to consider how librarians and libraries can be a driving force in a time of disruptive economic technological and cultural change Each chapter critically presents a short leadership provocation regarding libraries and their purpose encompassing impact service delivery collections staff skills and professional training and assessing what it means for leaders their sectors and organisations and how they have developed their personal leadership signature This book will be invaluable to library and information professionals in a range of public and private sector libraries as well as policy makers in services where libraries are a component It will also be useful for students educational establishments and IT professionals with an information management element to their work
