This book investigates inherent structural differences in the Chinese and English writing systems which predispose learners from childhood to develop specific literacy learning strategies which can impair later efforts at learning foreign language literacy if the foreign language script varies significantly from the native language script. It compares educational practices and philosophies in Chinese and English speaking classrooms and examines the psychological underpinnings of these literacy learning strategies. This book presents psychometric testing of adult reading strategy defaults and examines case study data revealing that Chinese students are susceptible to misapplying Chinese character level processing strategies to English word identification tasks which decreases reading efficiency and ultimately can lead to learning failure. Finally, a new educational framework is proposed for teaching beginning language specific word identification and literacy learning skills to learners whose first language script varies significantly from that of the target language. English Language Teaching and Learning Syllabus, 2019 English Methods Teaching Syllabus English Language Centre (Blantyre, Malawi), 1972 The United States Catalog, 1921 Education in the Global City Aaron Koh, Terence Chong, 2017-10-02

Education in the Global City examines education in Singapore through the critical lens of manufacturing. The book brings together two disparate fields which inform each other: education and the global city, and the book's contributors analyse and critique the manufacturing of Singapore education and Singapore's global city formation. The collection covers vocational education, language policies, Higher Education, English education, critical thinking, sex education, creativity, and critical feminist scholarship. Collectively, the book pries open the ideology of the manufacturing education system and points out the tension between the nation and its ideologies and the global city aspirations. It also asks how education contributes to and is shaped by the market realities of Singapore's global city ambitions which are at odds with the nationalistic local agenda and priorities of nation building. In interrupting and speaking against the prevailing and narrow manufacturing of education for a teleological end in spite of Singapore's successful nation building, this book is an important contribution to critical education scholarship. This book was originally published as a special issue of Discourse Studies in the Cultural Politics of Education.
