Managing China's Energy Sector Hongyi Lai, Malcolm Warner, 2017-10-02 Since China has now become the world's largest energy consumer its energy sector has understandably huge implications for the global economy This book examines the transformation of China's conventional and renewable energy sectors with special attention to state business relations Two studies examine the development of China's energy profile especially China's renewable energy Two others explore governmental relations with state owned enterprises SOEs and their reform Despite drastic restructuring in the late 1990s SOEs continue their oligopolistic control of the oil and gas sectors and even overshadow the stock market Three studies investigate the factors that help propel the expansion of China's conventional energy firms as well as those producing renewable energy i.e. solar PV industry A study of China's solar PV industry suggests that China's governmental support for it has evolved from subsidising production a mercantile stage aimed at expanding the industry's global production and export share to subsidising the demand side aiming at expanding domestic demand and absorbing redundant manufacture capacity Another review of this industry finds that firms tend to pay heavy attention to extra firm institutional network relationships both inside and outside China and that buyer supplier networks are influenced by extra local managerial education The final chapter compares China's provinces and their embedded carbon footprints per capita in urban areas from a consumption perspective using a self-organizing feature map SOFM model This book was originally published as a special issue of the Asia Pacific Business Review Energy Security and Sustainable Economic Growth in China S. Yao, 2014-07-29 This book focuses on various issues of energy efficiency and environmental policy in China It discusses different aspects on how China may maintain its fast economic growth through good management of energy consumption and development of various energy sources Mining for Change John Page, Finn Tarp, 2020-02-13 For a growing number of countries in Africa the discovery and exploitation of natural resources is a great opportunity but one accompanied by considerable risks Countries dependent on oil gas and mining have tended to have weaker long run growth higher rates of poverty and greater income inequality than less resource abundant economies For these resource producing economies relative prices make it more difficult to diversify into activities outside of the resource sector limiting structural change Mining for Change Natural Resources and Industry in Africa presents research undertaken to understand how better management of the revenues and opportunities associated with natural resources can accelerate diversification and structural change in Africa It begins with essays on managing the boom the construction sector and linking industry to the major issues that frame the question of how to use natural resources for structural change It reports the main research results for five countries Ghana Mozambique Uganda Tanzania and Zambia Each country study covers managing the boom the construction sector and linking industry to the resource Mining for Change argues that good policy can make a difference and sets out ideas for policy change and widening the options for structural change An open access title available under the terms of a CC BY NC SA 3.0 IGO licence From Reversal of Fortune to Economic Resurgence Banji Oyelaran-Oyeyinka, Oyebanke Abejirin, 2024-11-05 This book examines Nigeria Africa's largest economy and most populous country and Asia in comparative development and sectoral perspectives We traced the divergent growth in wealth between the two regions It takes a novel approach of matching key growth sectors across five selected Asian countries and Nigeria in a cross regional context We found that state and institutional capabilities underlying the generation and diffusion of industrial and technological knowledge in Asia distinguished it from Africa We employ quantitative and qualitative methods including case studies and statistical econometric methods to analyze factors that separate the sample countries that made rapid economic progress in catching up and those that tend to be stagnating and falling behind Progress made by Asian countries over the last five decades was due in large part to their pursuit of industrialization technological acquisition underpinned by leadership good governance and policies in the right institutional contexts The four Asian countries compared with Nigeria are Indonesia Malaysia South Korea Vietnam and Bangladesh There was not one grand development formula however the strategy broadly consisted of industrial vertical diversification as well as horizontal diversification in agriculture Building industrial capabilities that enable export competitiveness was critical Again while leadership is not usually included in factors of growth the book devotes a chapter to Leadership and Industrialization and another to State Capacity Industrialization and Economic Growth African countries on the contrary took the low road in exporting minerals and raw agricultural commodities with little value addition in the process Africa experienced a reversal of fortune The African condition is manifestly a Reversal of Fortune because in the 1950s they were ahead of or equal to Asia in per capita income as well as in other development metrics We carried out empirical measurement of Reversal of Fortune manifested in economic social technological and industrial conditions by analyzing the disparities in development metrics particularly the levels and rates of growth of national incomes industrialization rates and Human Development Index HDI The differences are stark
