Regulator

Regulators control output pressure in a system. Pressure in a system of lines acting over a specific amount of distance. These devices are fitted with mechanical components that react to changes in the downstream air pressure. The regulator allows a constant pressure to be maintained across a varying pressure source as long as the input pressure remains greater than the output rated pressure. The working air in a regulator is vented to atmosphere. The regulator is used to control pressure in a system.

Pressure Adjustment Knob

Turning this knob clockwise increases the pressure. Turning it counter-clockwise decreases the pressure. Lower the pressure for compressed air used in tools.

Regulator Controls Pressure or Force

Notes: Always use a regulator with a pressure gauge to monitor and control the performance of a pneumatic system. Every pneumatic system should have a pressure relief valve to prevent over pressure conditions. Always always always use compressed air. The regulator used in the 1/2" NPT 1500 PSI 100 lbs. is with working feature.

Speed or Flow Valves

Flow valves control the speed of air flow through one or more ports of a pneumatic system. There is a restriction of the volume of air passing through the valve or orifice over a period of time (flow or restriction). Flow control is adjusted using the needle valve. Turning the needle valve clockwise increases the flow rate. The higher the flow rate, the faster the cylinder will operate.

Notes: Not to regulate air flow directionally, use flow control in the other direction. The flow (speed) air direction is shown using a large arrow contained on the valve. The regulated air flow direction is shown with a small arrow. Flow control is best accomplished by regulating the flow of air out of a control or component.
