

The Right Ball FORE You

Hypothesis

The amount of water that will be absorbed by a plant will be directly related to the amount of water that is given to it. If I give a plant 100ml of water, it will grow taller than if I give it 50ml or 25ml.

Plant No. 10	Plant No. 11	Plant No. 12

Materials

100ml water
50ml water
25ml water
3 plants
Ruler
Soil
Planters

Results

Over the course of the experiment, the plants that received the most water grew the tallest. The plants that received the least water grew the shortest. This supports the hypothesis that the amount of water given to a plant is directly related to its height.

Conclusion

The hypothesis was proven correct. The amount of water given to a plant is directly related to its height. The plants that received the most water grew the tallest, while the plants that received the least water grew the shortest.

Procedure

1. Fill three planters with soil.
2. Plant three identical plants in the planters.
3. Water the plants with 100ml, 50ml, and 25ml of water respectively.
4. Measure the height of each plant every day for three days.
5. Record the data in the table above.
