CHAPTER 1

Section 1: Population Dynamics (pages 10-15)

Compare methods used about population characteristics.

Methods of population data collection are categorized as follows:

cross-sectional population study

cohort studies

case-control studies

surveys

Some characteristics that all populations have include (1) population density

(2) population size and (3) dispersion. Population density is measured by number of individuals per unit area, including, and not being, population density.

Population density is high where resources are abundant. Hence, the best population density is high where resources are abundant.

Compare methods used about population characteristics.

Compare methods by marking the correct column. (Use checkmarks)

Method	Energy Dependence	Energy Independence
(1) Cross-sectional studies
(2) Cohort studies
(3) Case-control studies
(4) Surveys
(5) All require the study of systems

Characteristics of four types of the systems in (5), include the indicated form of physical energy in (6):

(1) Population density (population & population per unit area)

None

(2) Energy dependence (study of energy dependence)

Energy dependence

(3) The relationship, the dependence of energy dependence on population density
