Decentralization And Public Service Delivery In Asia:

Decentralization and Public Service Delivery in Asia Giorgio Brosio, 2014 This paper assesses how decentralization can contribute if proper political and fiscal institutions are present to improving service delivery in Asia In other words decentralization is an opportunity and a challenge at the same time The paper presents the salient characteristics of decentralized government in Asia and then focuses on the analysis of critical issues leading to partial decentralization that is common to most models Consideration is also given to the emerging challenges common to most Asian systems Finally the paper addresses the issue of decentralization in the education sector This is a crucial sector in terms of costliness and of impact on national growth and individual opportunities where however the outcomes of decentralization are difficult to assess

Decentralization, Local Governance, and Localizing the Sustainable Development Goals in Asia and the Pacific Bruno Carrasco, Hanif A. Rahemtulla, Rainer Rohdewohld, 2022-10-12 Since its adoption in 2015 the 2030 Agenda on Sustainable Development has shaped not only international development cooperation but also the design of national trajectories for social and economic development In tandem with other global agendas adopted that year such as the Paris Agreement on Climate Change and UN Habitat s New Urban Agenda it remains the global and regional blueprint for sustainable development despite the COVID 19 pandemic The term localizing the Sustainable Development Goals SDGs has been used to capture the importance of subnational governments for achieving national SDG agendas However there is little deeper analysis of the required nexus between fiscal political and legal arrangements for SNGs their involvement in national policy arenas which discuss and decide on national SDG strategies and the need for locally disaggregated data systems on the one hand and effective SDG localization strategies on the other hand It is this aspect which the present publication explores in greater detail by using country examples and conceptual analyses The text will be of interest to policymakers scholars students and practitioners in public policy and public administration decentralization and sustainable development with a focus on the Asia and Pacific region The Open Access version of this book available at www.taylorfrancis.com has been made available under a Creative Commons Attribution Non Commercial No Derivative License CC BY NC ND 3 0 IGO Decentralization and Service Delivery ,2005

Dissatisfied with centralized approaches to delivering local public services a large number of countries are decentralizing responsibility for these services to lower level locally elected governments The results have been mixed The paper provides a framework for evaluating the benefits and costs in terms of service delivery of different approaches to decentralization based on relationships of accountability between different actors in the delivery chain Moving from a model of central provision to that of decentralization to local governments introduces a new relationship of accountability between national and local policymakers while altering existing relationships such as that between citizens and elected politicians Only by examining how these relationships change can we understand why decentralization can and sometimes cannot lead to better service delivery In particular the various instruments of decentralization fiscal administrative regulatory market and financial can affect the incentives facing service providers even though they relate only to local policymakers Likewise and perhaps more significantly the incentives facing local and national politicians can have a profound effect on the provision of local services Finally the process of implementing decentralization can be as important as the design of the system in influencing service delivery outcomes Governance in Developing Asia Anil B. Deolalikar, Shikha Jha, Pilipinas F. Quising, 2015-04-30

Governance in Developing Asia is one of the first books of its kind to provide an overview of the role that better governance and citizen empowerment can play in improving public service delivery in developing Asia The World Development Report 2004 see Decentralization in Asia and Latin America Paul J. Smoke, Eduardo J. Gómez, George E. Peterson, 2006 In addition to taking an atypically comparative perspective the volume highlights the importance of an historical analysis of decentralization and links this to institutional and public policy outcomes Placing decentralization in this context illustrates why it has taken dissimilar shapes and produced varying results over time in different countries This in turn helps to clarify the types of institutions and conditions required for the development and survival of decentralization paving the way for more creative thinking and informed policymaking The countries covered include Cambodia China India Indonesia Vietnam Bolivia Argentina Mexico Peru and Brazil Strengthening the Ombudsman Institution in Asia , 2011 Good Governance and Indigenous Peoples in Asia Lejo Sibbel, 2005 The report examines the ways in which the governance policies of international development organizations affect the indigenous peoples of Asia It argues that there are a number of structural problems which continue to prevent indigenous peoples benefiting from efforts to improve governance to the degree that could be expected The report ends with a set of recommendations for improved good governance Intergovernmental Fiscal Transfers in Asia Paul J. Smoke, Yun-hwan Kim, Asian Development Bank, 2002 Intergovernmental transfers are an important tool of public sector finance in both industrialized and developing countries Critically examining selected intergovernmental transfers in three large Asian countries India Pakistan and the Philippines this study highlights lessons from these countries that those intending to reform their intergovernmental transfer systems might apply Each country is considered in light of the accepted principles and international practices of intergovernmental transfers A summary is provided that synthesizes the results from case studies examining how they meet individual country objectives and how they relate to broader international experience

Central and Local Government Relations in Asia Naoyuki Yoshino, Peter J. Morgan (Economist), 2017 Sustainable and inclusive growth in emerging Asian economies requires high levels of public investment in areas such as infrastructure education health and social services The increasing complexity and regional diversity of these investment needs together with the trend of democratization has led to fiscal decentralization being implemented in many Asian economies This book takes stock of some major issues regarding fiscal decentralization including expenditure and revenue assignments transfer programs and the sustainability of local government finances and develops important findings and policy recommendations The book's expert contributors assess the current state of the allocation of expenditures and revenues between central and local governments in emerging Asian economies and discuss their major strengths and weaknesses They also present relevant case studies of experiences and reform measures related to strengthening and monitoring local government finance including the implications of expanded fiscal capacity for infrastructure investment and other public spending Covering the major Asian economies of the People's Republic of China India Indonesia and Japan among others the book focuses on the economic incentives of transfer schemes how intergovernmental fiscal equalization works and how subnational government borrowing regulations could influence debt dynamics and the fiscal deficits of local governments This book's insightful analysis will be essential reading for policymakers in Asian economies and academics and researchers in the areas of economic development public finance and fiscal policy as well as development aid officials multilateral banks and NGOs Contributors include S Barrios S i Bessho P Chakraborty P Das Z Fan R K Goel S Li D Mart nez L pez J Martinez Vazquez P J Morgan A Nasution J W Saunoris P Smoke L Q Trinh V Vulovic G Wan N Yoshino Q Zhang

Country Operational Strategy Asian Development Bank,2001 Local Government Finance, Private Resources, and Local Credit Markets in Asia Roberto de Vera,Yun-hwan Kim,2003 The ongoing political decentralization in Asia with central governments devolving to local governments the responsibilities of delivering key development projects and public services calls for sound local government finance Local government finance in the region exhibits several problems deterioration of the fiscal health in many countries mismatch between the delegated responsibilities and revenue generating authority resultant continued heavy reliance on central government transfers and lack of political will to develop an external financing strategy to tap long term private resources In order for local governments to mobilize private savings for long term infrastructure projects it is imperative to develop municipal credit markets Two models of municipal credit markets can be considered the bank model popular in Western Europe and the bond model widely used in North America The bond model has theoretically more advantages than the other However Asian local governments may start with either model considering the countries social cultural political milieu and keep a proper combination of both models serving different segments of local credit markets Economic and Social Survey of Asia and the Pacific United Nations.
