Occupational Science Jerry A. Johnson, Elizabeth J. Yerxa, 1990 Representing one of the most visionary concepts about occupational therapy practice and education available today Occupational Science The Foundation for New Models of Practice introduces the notion of a basic science of occupation Specifically this provocative volume proposes that the profession of occupational therapy in collaboration with other relevant scientific disciplines develop a science of occupation that would provide a foundation for occupational therapy practice The development of an occupational science is desirable since occupation and its meaning for and application to human life are unique to occupational therapy and embody the principles upon which the profession was founded The forward thinking authors discuss the relevance of this potential science propose arguments for its acceptance and support by members of the profession and provide illustrations that suggest its application in practice Certain to provoke serious discussion among occupational therapists this revolutionary book offers new potential and possibilities for the continuing growth of occupational therapy as a scientific discipline and as a profession Occupational Science introduces the idea of a basic science of occupation which studies the human as an occupational being demonstrates the application of occupational science to occupational therapy practice provides innovative models of occupational therapy practice to improve the capacities of people who have chronic disability and to prevent incapacity in those at risk

A Dictionary of Occupational Science and Occupational Therapy Matthew Molineux, 2017-03-23 Including over 600 A to Z entries this original dictionary provides clear and succinct definitions of the terms used in the related and developing fields of occupational science and occupational therapy Entries cover a broad range of topics from activities of daily living and autonomy to task oriented approach and work life balance and have a clear occupational focus They provide an overview of the complex nature of human occupation and the impact of illness on occupation and well being Descriptions and analysis are backed up by key theories from related areas such as anthropology sociology and medicine This is an authoritative resource for students of occupational science and occupational therapy as well as an accessible point of reference for practitioners from both subject areas

Occupational Science for Occupational Therapy Doris E. Pierce, 2014 Occupational Science for Occupational Therapy shows how different types of occupational science research support occupational therapy The book is research based and moves firmly away from presenting theories and models that are unsupported by research within the field The book regards occupational therapy as actively involved in producing a science highly responsive to its knowledge needs instead of as a profession that consumes and applies research that is produced within other disciplines and for other purposes Provided by publisher

Essential Concepts of Occupation for Occupational Therapy Charles Christiansen, Kristine Haertl, 2023-11-30 Essential Concepts of Occupation for Occupational Therapy is an accessible introduction to vital concepts in occupational science for the occupational therapy practitioner or student It invites therapists to view and understand their clients differently by using an occupational lens to focus on the lives of their clients as everyday doers It addresses the key questions at the heart of understanding humans as occupational beings What do people typically do And where when how why and with whom do they do it These questions organize the key concepts from occupational science that form the first chapters of this book enabling therapists to better understand their clients and enabling their clients to better understand the importance of occupation to their well being Additional chapters clearly describe how therapists can use occupation based models to apply an expanded view of occupation and make evaluation and intervention more relevant and beneficial to their clients A final chapter examines trends and lifestyle changes occurring in the 21st century to anticipate how these might impact future practice Through use of engaging and thoughtful cases that illustrate many of the concepts this guide will help practitioners clearly understand their clients as doers while also providing enhanced ways for therapist to confidently apply these concepts in practice

Occupational Therapy Models for Intervention with Children and Families Sandra Barker Dunbar, 2007 This textbook explores recent theoretical models that enable occupational therapists to practice and interact with families in a more holistic and occupation centered manner It offers the latest information on viewing the broader contexts of environment and family in order to meet diverse occupational needs in a range of settings The editor presents a variety of case scenarios that feature culturally diverse populations and varying diagnoses of children with occupational needs With contributions from 11 leaders in occupational therapy this comprehensive text is designed to increase awareness and understanding of theoretical models and their relationship to current occupational therapy practice with today s children and families Traditional frames of reference in pediatric practice are explored including sensory integration and neurodevelopmental treatment Some current theoretical models discussed include the Model of Human Occupation the Person Environment Occupation model the Ecology of Human Performance model and the Occupational Adaptation model The new Occupational Therapy Practice Framework is incorporated throughout the text Overall the textbook employs a practical approach to this significant aspect of pediatric practice in occupational therapy

Illuminating The Dark Side of Occupation Rebecca Twinley,2020-10-18 This innovative volume introduces Twinley s concept of The Dark Side of Occupation Focused on less explored and under addressed occupations it is an idea which challenges traditional assumptions around the positive beneficial health promoting relationship between occupation and health Emphasising that people s individual experiences of occupations are not always addressed and may not always be legal socially acceptable or conducive to good health the book investigates how these experiences can be explored theoretically in practice and research and in curriculum content for those learning about occupation Beginning with a discussion of some assumptions and misunderstandings that have been made about the concept the substantive chapters present and analyse tangible examples of the concept s applicability This ground breaking and practice changing text provides ideas for future research and highlights contemporary internationally relevant issues and concerns such as the coronavirus pandemic This book is an essential purchase for students in occupational therapy and science and valuable supplementary reading for practitioners It is also relevant to a wide interdisciplinary audience with an interest in human occupation encompassing anthropologists councillors criminologists nurses and human geographers
