Regulator

Regulators control output pressure in a system. Pressure in a system of lines acting over a specific amount of distance. These devices are fitted with mechanical components that react to changes in the downstream air pressure. The regulator allows a constant pressure to be maintained across a varying pressure source as long as the input pressure remains greater than the output rated pressure. The working air in a regulator is vented to atmosphere. The regulator is used to control pressure in a system.

Pressure Adjustment Knob

Turning this knob adjusts the pressure. It is used to set the pressure in the system. Lower the pressure for a lower flow rate.

Regulator Controls Pressure or Force

Note: Always use a regulator with a pressure gauge to monitor and control the performance of a pneumatic system. Every pneumatic system should have a pressure relief valve to prevent over pressure conditions.

Always always always use pneumatic safety. The regulator used in the 1/2" NPT 150psi 100psi and has a self-sealing feature.

Speed or Flow Valves

Flow valves control the speed of air flow through a system. They are a means of the release of air through the valve or component over a period of time (flow or restriction). Flow control is achieved using the throttle valve. Turning the throttle valve restricts the flow rate. The higher the flow rate, the faster the component will operate.

Flow: Air is regulated in one direction only, and flows slowly in the other direction.

The flow (speed) of air through the valve is controlled using a large valve controlled on the valve. The regulated air flow direction is shown with a small arrow. Flow control is best accomplished by regulating the flow of air out of a circuit or component.
