

10. If you are given different frequency table, which method will be the most appropriate?

Answer:

1. If the data is given in frequency table, then the pie chart is the most appropriate.

Example: The following table represents the distribution of marks obtained by the 100 students in the 100 marks test. Find the most appropriate method to represent the data.

Answer:

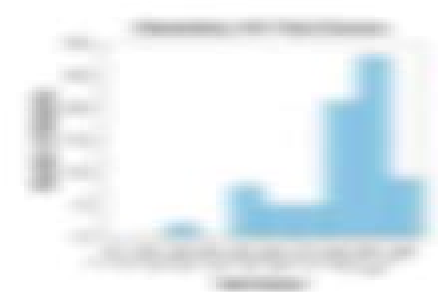

1. If the graph is given in frequency table, then the height of the bar represents the number of data in each category.

Example: The following bar graph shows the number of students who passed in each class in an examination. Find the graph to determine the number of students who passed in each class in an examination.

Answer:

1. In a histogram, the height of each bar represents the frequency of the corresponding class. Therefore, the height of the bar represents the number of students who passed in each class in an examination.
