

IGCSE Biology (0610) Frequently Asked Questions

Can my candidates take a dictionary / calculator into the examination?

Calculators can be used in all science papers and students should take a calculator, ruler, pencil, protractor and set of compasses into all science exams. A simple translation dictionary is allowed (i.e. one that does not give definitions).

What equipment should we have in our laboratories?

Some useful information is given in Cambridge International Examinations' booklet "Planning for Practical Science in Secondary Schools" (first edition June 2000), available free from our publications department. The IGCSE Biology syllabus contains a brief list of appropriate equipment and materials in the Assessment Criteria for Practical section.

How many lessons per week will I need to cover the syllabus?

This partly depends on what your students have done before they begin their IGCSE course. If they have been in your Centre for some years beforehand, then you may have been able to begin building up their knowledge and skills already. If they come to you from many different backgrounds, then you may need to do more work with them to prepare them for IGCSE. As a rough guideline, many Centres teach their IGCSE Biology students for about 2 hours 30 minutes per week over a 2-year period, but it is not unusual for the time allocated to be significantly more or less than this. You should try to have one relatively long session each week, so that your students can carry out practical work.

My candidates are doing the Alternative to Practical paper, so they don't need any laboratory experience, do they?

Yes, they do. The ATP paper is an alternative to the Practical Examination Paper, not an alternative to doing practical work. The syllabus makes it clear, in both the Aims and the Assessment Objectives, that the course should be taught practically and that candidates should have experience of doing rather than merely reading (experimental) work. The Alternative to Practical paper assesses their practical skills, including both skills handling and familiarity with standard laboratory equipment. Any candidates without experience of doing practical work will be disadvantaged in the paper. In addition using practical work as a teaching tool, giving students the opportunity to learn by doing practical work themselves, is an excellent way of enabling candidates to build an understanding of specific theoretical perspectives of Biology.

Is there an option available which doesn't involve any assessment of practical skills?

No. Practical skills are as much an integral part of Biology as any other science. This reflects the importance of practical experimentation and investigation as the means by which Biologists have developed our knowledge of organisms and their physiology, biochemistry and interaction. In preparing your candidates for the assessment of practical skills, and in giving them an appropriate experience of IGCSE Biology, you are expected to provide a range of practical work for them to do, so that they can develop the skills necessary for success. A Biology qualification without a practical component would be a second-rate assessment of the subject, and CIE aims to provide valid qualifications acceptable in all areas of the world.
