- To understand differences between Action Blocks and the standard

19.1 INTRODUCTION

If you know how to program in any high level language, such as Basic or C, you will be comfortable with Structured Text (ST) programming. ST programming is part of the IEC 61131 standard. An example program is shown in Figure 19-1. The program is called main and is defined between the statements PROGRAM and END_PROGRAM. Every program begins with statements that declare the variables, in this case the variable x is declared to be an integer. The program follows the variable declarations. This program accepts from 0 to 10 with a loop. Where the example program starts the value of integer variable x will be set to zero. The REPEAT and END_REPEAT statements define the loop. The CNTR statement defines where loop starts and, is used to provide an increment that makes x the exit loop.

```
PROGRAM main
VAR
        x : INT;
END_VAR
x := 0;
REPEAT
        x := x + 1;
        CNTR( x >= 10);
END_REPEAT;
END_PROGRAM
```

Note: Action Blocks do not implement the standard so that the programs can be written with confidence. We have programming in IEC Logic, only the function blocks to the left needed for control. The variable "x" would be declared as a long, and the program would be declared as a task.
