Babiuk, J.P. Phillips, Murray Moo-Young, 2013-10-22 The advent of biotechnology has the potential to develop a variety of novel or better quality products for the treatment of a large number of diseases in livestock In addition as we understand more about the reproductive physiology of animals the potential exists to dramatically increase the productivity of animals through better therapeutics and diagnostics for the control of many infectious diseases Productivity can also be increased through animal breeding strategies including gene transfer micromanipulation of embryos and gamete sex selection As well as being a valuable reference to current knowledge in these areas this first supplement to Comprehensive Biotechnology also looks at societal concerns over the use of antibiotics and chemical residues in meat and milk products which are forcing biotechnologists to investigate more natural means of controlling infection by stimulating the animal s own immune system to combat infection The identification of a variety of cytokines which are involved in regulating immune responses provides opportunities to use the animal s natural defence mechanisms to combat many infections or increase the animal s resistance to such infections These approaches should provide tools for eventual elimination of specific diseases from counties regions or whole continents Comprehensive
