Multi-Criteria Decision Analysis for Strategic Decision Making

Gilberto Montibeller and Alberto Franco

Abstract In this chapter we discuss the use of MCDA for supporting strategic decision making, particularly within strategy workshops. The chapter begins by exploring the nature of strategic decisions and the characteristics of the strategic decision making process. Specifically, we examine the technical issues associated with the content of strategic decisions, and the social aspects that characterise the processes within which they are created. These features lead us to propose a number of adaptations to the standard MCDA approach if it were to be used at a more strategic level. We make suggestions on how to implement these proposals, and illustrate them with examples drawn from real-world interventions in which we have participated as strategic decision support analysts.

2.1 Introduction

A strategic decision has been defined as one that is “important, in terms of the actions taken, the resources committed, or the precedents set” [48] (p. 126). Strategic decisions are “infrequent decisions made by the top leaders of an organisation that critically affect organizational health and survival” [18] (p. 17). Furthermore, the process of creating, evaluating and implementing strategic decisions is typically characterised by the consideration of high levels of uncertainty, potential synergies between different options, long term consequences, and the need of key stakeholders to engage in significant psychological and social negotiation about the strategic decision under consideration.
