the term intermolecular forces of attraction can be used to represent all forces between molecules
- 1.48 explain why the melting and boiling points of substances with simple molecular structures increase, in general, with increasing relative molecular mass

Strong, directional electrostatic attraction is formed between the (negatively charged) shared electrons and the (positively charged) nuclei of the two bonded atoms. Such attraction is called a

The bonded atoms can then attain an octet or duplet of electrons and become stable (i.e. each atom attains the stable electronic structure of its nearest noble gas).
