

Capital budgeting involves the process of evaluating and selecting long-term investments that are consistent with the firm's goal of maximizing owner wealth. Here are some common types of questions related to FIN 200 - Basics of Capital Budgeting:

1. Net Present Value (NPV)

Question: What is the NPV of a project with an initial investment of $100,000, expected annual cash inflows of $30,000 for 5 years, and a required rate of return of 10%?

Answer: To calculate NPV, discount the cash inflows at the required rate of return and subtract the initial investment.

2. Internal Rate of Return (IRR)

Question: A project requires an initial investment of $50,000 and provides cash inflows of $15,000 annually for 4 years. What is the project's IRR?

Answer: IRR is the discount rate that makes the NPV of the project equal to zero. You can solve for it using trial and error or financial calculators.

3. Payback Period

Question: A project costs $60,000 and provides annual cash inflows of $20,000. What is the payback period?

Answer: The payback period is the time it takes to recover the initial investment. In this case, the payback period is  $$60,000 / $20,000 = 3$  years.

Finance Interview Questions on Financial Modeling and Capital Budgeting - English Navneet Singh, Here are some finance interview questions on financial modelling and capital budgeting along with possible answers and explanations
Financial Modelling Questions What is financial modelling and why is it important Answer Financial modelling is the process of creating a mathematical model that represents the financial performance of a business project or investment It is important because it helps in decision making by forecasting future financial performance assessing risks and evaluating the financial impact of strategic decisions What are the key components of a financial model Answer The key components of a financial model typically include Assumptions Inputs about growth rates costs revenue etc Income Statement Projected revenues expenses and profits Balance Sheet Projected assets liabilities and equity Cash Flow Statement Projected cash inflows and outflows Supporting Schedules Detailed calculations for debt working capital depreciation etc Explain the difference between a DCF model and a comparable company analysis Answer A Discounted Cash Flow DCF model values a company based on its projected future cash flows which are discounted to the present value using the company's cost of capital. A comparable company analysis on the other hand values a company by comparing it to similar companies using valuation multiples such as P/E ratio, EV/EBITDA, etc. How do you calculate Free Cash Flow (FCF)? Answer: Free Cash Flow (FCF) is calculated as  $FCF = \text{Net Income} - \text{Depreciation} - \text{Amortization} - \text{Changes in Working Capital} - \text{Capital Expenditures}$ . What is sensitivity analysis in financial modelling? Answer: Sensitivity analysis is a technique used to determine how different values of an independent variable affect a particular dependent variable under a given set of assumptions. In financial modelling, it involves changing key assumptions, e.g., growth rates, discount rates, to see how they impact the model's outcomes.

Capital Budgeting Questions

What is capital budgeting and why is it important? Answer: Capital budgeting is the process of evaluating and selecting long-term investments that are in line with the firm's strategic objectives. It is important because it helps firms allocate resources to projects that will maximize shareholder value and ensure long-term profitability.

Explain the Net Present Value (NPV) method. Answer: The NPV method involves calculating the present value of all cash inflows and outflows associated with a project using a discount rate, typically the firm's cost of capital. If the NPV is positive, the project is expected to generate more value than its cost and should be considered for investment.

What is the Internal Rate of Return (IRR) and how is it used in capital budgeting? Answer: The IRR is the discount rate that makes the NPV of a project zero. It represents the expected rate of return of the project. In capital budgeting, if the IRR is greater than the firm's required rate of return, the project is considered acceptable.

How do you assess the risk of a capital budgeting project? Answer: Risk can be assessed using several methods, including Sensitivity Analysis (Analysing how changes in key assumptions impact project outcomes), Scenario Analysis (Evaluating the project under different scenarios: best case, worst case, most likely case), and Monte Carlo Simulation (Using statistical methods to model the probability of different outcomes).

Real Options Analysis Evaluating the flexibility and options available in the project.

What are the advantages and disadvantages of the Payback Period method? Answer: Advantages: Simple to calculate and understand; Useful for assessing the liquidity risk of a project. Disadvantages: Ignores the time value of money; Does not consider cash flows beyond the payback period; Does not measure profitability or overall value creation.

These questions and answers provide a solid foundation for preparing for an interview focused on financial modelling and capital budgeting.
