developmental role in financing innovation and technology for green transformations The book also highlights the role of citizens as innovators entrepreneurs green consumers and members of social movements Green transformations must be both top down involving elite alliances between states and business but also bottom up pushed by grassroots innovators and entrepreneurs and part of wider mobilisations among civil society The chapters in the book draw on international examples to emphasise how contexts matter in shaping pathways to sustainability Written by experts in the field this book will be of great interest to researchers and students in environmental studies international relations political science development studies geography and anthropology as well as policymakers and practitioners concerned with sustainability

Climate Change as Class War Matthew T. Huber, 2022-05-10 How to build a movement to confront climate change The climate crisis is not primarily a problem of believing science or individual carbon footprints it is a class problem rooted in who owns controls and profits from material production As such it will take a class struggle to solve In this ground breaking class analysis Matthew T Huber argues that the carbon intensive capitalist class must be confronted for producing climate change Yet the narrow and unpopular roots of climate politics in the professional class is not capable of building a movement up to this challenge For an alternative strategy he proposes climate politics that appeals to the vast majority of society the working class Huber evaluates the Green New Deal as a first attempt to channel working class material and ecological interests and advocates building union power in the very energy system we need to dramatically transform In the end as in classical socialist movements of the early 20th Century winning the climate struggle will need to be internationalist based on a form of planetary working class solidarity

What's Wrong with Climate Politics and How to Fix It Paul G. Harris, 2013-07-11 Governments have failed to stem global emissions of carbon dioxide and other greenhouse gases causing climate change Indeed climate changing pollution is increasing globally and will do so for decades to come without far more aggressive action What explains this failure to effectively tackle one of the world's most serious problems And what can we do about it To answer these questions Paul G Harris looks at climate politics as a doctor might look at a very sick patient He performs urgent diagnoses and prescribes vital treatments to revive our ailing planet before it's too late The book begins by diagnosing what's most wrong with climate politics including the anachronistic international system which encourages nations to fight for their narrowly perceived interests and makes major cuts in greenhouse pollution extraordinarily difficult the deadlock between the United States and China which together produce over one third of global greenhouse gas pollution but do little more than demand that the other act first and affluent lifestyles and overconsumption which are spreading rapidly from industrialized nations to the developing world The book then prescribes several remedies for the failed politics of climate change including a new kind of climate diplomacy with people at its center national policies that put the common but differentiated responsibilities of individuals alongside those of nations and a campaign for simultaneously enhancing human wellbeing and environmental sustainability While these treatments are aspirational they are not intended to be utopian As Harris shows they are genuine workable solutions to what ails the politics of climate change today

The Political Economy of Global Warming Del Weston,2014-04-11 Humanity is facing an unprecedented global catastrophe as a result of global warming This book examines the reasons why international agencies together with national governments are seemingly unable to provide real and binding solutions to the problems The reasons presented relate to the existing dominant global economic structure of capitalism as well as the fact that global warming is too often seen as an isolated problem rather than one of a suite of exceptional converging and accelerating crises arising from the global capitalist political economy This book adopts a political economy framework to address these issues It accepts the science of global warming but challenges the predominant politics and economics of global warming To illustrate the key issues involved the book draws on South Africa building on Samir Amin's thesis that the country represents a microcosm of the global political economy By taking a political economy approach the book provides a clear explanation of the deep and pervasive problem of the denial which fails to acknowledge global warming as a systemic rather than a market problem The book should be of interest to students and scholars researching climate change environmental politics environmental and ecological economics development studies and political economics
