Decision Making Under Stress Emerging Themes And Applications:

Decision-Making Under Stress Rhona Flin, Eduardo Salas, Michael Straub, Lynne Martin, 2017-03-02 In our high technology society there is a growing demand for a better understanding of decision making in high risk situations in order to improve selection training and operational performance Decision Making Under Stress presents a state of the art review of psychological theory in research and practice on decision making in high pressure and emergency situations It focuses on the experienced decision makers who deal with such risks principally on flight decks at civil emergencies in industrial settings and military environments The 29 chapters cover a wide range of perspectives and applications from aviation military industry and the emergency services The authors all international invited experts in their field are based in research centers and universities from Europe North America and Australia Their common interest is in the theories and methods of a new research domain called NDM naturalistic decision making This volume comprises the edited contributions to the Third International NDM conference sponsored by the US Army Research Institute and the US Naval Air Warfare Center which was held in Aberdeen Scotland in September 1996 The NDM researchers are interested in decision making in situations characterised by high risk time pressure uncertain goals ambiguous information and teamwork The extent to which the NDM approach can explain and predict human performance in such settings is a central theme discussed with many practical examples and applications This book is essential reading for applied psychologists pilots emergency commanders military officers high hazard managers safety and emergency response professionals

Decision Making in Aviation Don Harris, Wen-Chin Li, 2017-07-05 Decision making pervades every aspect of life people make hundreds of decisions every day The vast majority of these are trivial and without a right or wrong answer In some respects there is also nothing extraordinary about pilot decision making It is only the setting that is different the underlying cognitive processes are just the same However it is the context and the consequences of a poor decision which serve to differentiate aeronautical decision making Decisions on the flight deck are often made with incomplete information and while under time pressure The implications for inadequate performance is much more serious than in many other professions Poor decisions are implicated in over half of all aviation accidents This volume contains key papers published over the last 25 years providing an overview of the major paradigms by which aeronautical decision making has been investigated Furthermore decision making does not occur in isolation It is a joint function of the flight tasks knowledge equipment on the flight deck and other stressors In this volume of collected papers works from leading authors in the field consider all these aspects of aeronautical decision making

Decision Making Under Stress Rhona H. Flin, 1997 This is a state of the art review of psychological theory research and practice on decision making in high pressure and emergency situations The book focuses on the experienced decision makers who deal with such risks principally on flight decks at civil emergencies in industrial settings and military environments

International Aerospace Abstracts, 1999 Observing the Volcano World Carina J. Fearnley, Deanne K. Bird, Katharine Haynes, William J. McGuire, Gill Jolly, 2018-07-13 This open access book provides a comprehensive overview of volcanic crisis research the goal being to establish ways of successfully applying volcanology in practice and to identify areas that need to be addressed for future progress. It shows how volcano crises are managed in practice and helps to establish best practices. Consequently the book brings together authors from all over the globe who work with volcanoes ranging from observatory volcanologists disaster practitioners and government officials to NGO based and government practitioners to address three key aspects of volcanic crises. First the book explores the unique nature of volcanic hazards which makes them a particularly challenging threat to forecast and manage due in part to their varying spatial and temporal characteristics. Second it presents lessons learned on how to best manage volcanic events based on a number of crises that have shaped our understanding of volcanic hazards and crises management. Third it discusses the diverse and wide ranging aspects of communication involved in crises which merge old practices and new technologies to accommodate an increasingly challenging and globalised world. The information and insights presented here are essential to tapping established knowledge moving towards more robust volcanic crises management and understanding how the volcanic world is perceived from a range of standpoints and contexts around the globe. Managing Crises Uriel Rosenthal, Arjen Boin, Louise Kloos

Comfort,2001 This textbook considers the phenomenon of crises from a new perspective one that bridges the conventional social science view with the ever changing nature of crises in modern society The textbook is divided into five sections The first section introduces the perspective taken in the textbook and offers an understanding of who crises means The second section discusses how crises develop and escalate One chapter in this section offers case studies of a number of Los Angeles riots that have taken place since the 1960 s including the riot sparked by the verdict of the Rodney King trial The third section provides discussions on the decision making leadership and coordination that occur when responding to any particular crisis Section four reviews the politicization of crisis as well as the traumas that accompany any crisis The fifth section details the unintended consequences of modernization and how this will shape crises of the future
