- 3. Describe the various health plan products and services provided by the plan.

Executive Overview

Read this introduction to the health plan organization.

Regulatory differences between the various entities of the health coverage ("the business")—health, long-term care, medical, and dental—combined with the various regulatory and product-related activities in each of the entities and the structure of the health coverage as "the all-things-in-one" provider, insurer, and/or sponsor.

Health and long-term care plan plans and activities should be considered separate departments of the health plan that coordinate themselves for each business.
