

Oxidative Phosphorylation

How do the electron transport chain and ATP synthase create ATP during cellular respiration?

Figure 2

The membranes of aerobic organisms are studded with proteins that are involved in energy chain and phosphorylation. These are collectively known as the electron transport chain and phosphorylation system. Electrons from glucose are passed through a series of proteins, and at the end of the chain, oxygen is reduced to water. This process is coupled to the synthesis of ATP from ADP and inorganic phosphate. This process is known as oxidative phosphorylation and is the final stage of cellular respiration.

Model 1 – Electron Transport Chain

1. Describe the electron transport chain in Model 1. How are electrons transferred between the two respiratory chains?

2. What is the purpose of the electron transport chain?
