There are 16 genetically different gametes that can be produced because in 2ⁿ where n is total number chromosomes pairs, in this case with four chromosomes pairs we have 2⁴ or 16 genetically different gametes

3. Although you inherit a combination of chromosomes from parents, you recognize that some traits seem to be inherited independently. For example, hair color and eye color don't always seem to be inherited together? Explain.

That's because linked genes are found on the same chromosome. Traits that are independent assortment are not, and a heterozygous-diploid only makes only one heterozygous chromosome from each will be found with some of the alleles in the gametes made. Alleles that are linked together

4. Describe the alignment of chromosomes during prophase I, write equations.

Homologous chromosomes I chromosomes carry and homologous chromosomes carry homologous alleles. This is a diploid because it takes the pairing with the same and results in two linked chromosomes

5. How does recombination lead to chromosomes with different alleles? Describe how types of genetic variation that can result from recombination.
