Evaluation Roots Marvin C. Alkin,2004-02-24 Concern for evaluation theoretical prescriptions emerged about 40 years ago giving it a history that is both recent enough to be part of the living experience of many of today s theorists and old enough to afford an opportunity for an analysis of how the field has evolved over time This book examines current evaluation theories and traces their evolution with the point of view that theories build upon theories and therefore evaluation theories are related to each other Initially all evaluation was derived from social science research methodology and accountability concerns The way in which these evaluation roots grew to form a tree helps to provide a better understanding of evaluation theory Thus the book uses an evaluation theory tree as its central metaphor The authors posit that evaluation theories can be classified by the extent to which they focus on methods uses or valuing these three approaches form the major limbs of the tree In addition to the authors overview which analyzes the evaluation theory tree and connections among theories the book contains essays by most of the leading evaluation theorists In these pieces the evaluators comment on their own development and give their views of their placement upon the tree

Professional Evaluation Ernest R. House,1993 The book provides an in depth examination of the history and discipline of evaluation as well as its treatment of the subjects of ethics justice and professionalism The strength of the book is without question Ernest R House s many years of experience as an evaluator and his proposition that evaluation as an institution profession and discipline represents a strong and significant force in the process of social change

Evaluation and Program Planning This book pushes back the frontiers Ernest R House has already established with his previous work in the political and social dimensions of professional evaluation It represents the thoughtful reflections of an experienced evaluator with an unusual talent for original perspectives on this complex and vital emergent discipline Michael Scriven Director Evaluation Institute Pacific Graduate School of Psychology For 25 years Ernest R House has watched us who specialize in program evaluation recording and interpreting in the best of qualitative ways the maturation of our field In this book he portrays us as white collar migrant workers carded coddled and manipulated by governments reluctant to leave the comfort of social science but having outgrown that dependency reaching toward what Michael Scriven called a transdiscipline If Lee Cronbach once made us wince by revealing our political blood House startles us exposing neural ties with ethics technocracy capitalism manifest destiny even craniometry Popping bluerock metaphors from liberal left to libertarian right House declares us to be complex creature of nature and nurture seldom acting of our own free will It is a magical mythological tour Never before has the special work of the program evaluator been shown to be immersed in and buffeted by such a diverse array of social political and philosophical currents In an appealing mix of personal reminiscence and social commentary Ernie House has collected a fine album of the early years of program evaluation Robert E Stake Center for Instructional Research and Curriculum Evaluation University of Illinois at Urbana Champaign Why do we have evaluation Is evaluation a discipline How much impact does evaluation have on government education or politics Can social problems such as poverty be solved like engineering problems by the application of resources and intelligence By exploring how evaluation has evolved as a discipline science and profession House examines how evaluation impacts modern societies and the issues that this impact social force raises for evaluators Addressing such issues as pluralism vs managerialism quantitative vs qualitative methodologies the purpose of higher education for knowledge production vs educating people for professions clientism and multicultural concerns House traces how evaluation has evolved as a basis for determining where the field should go and how

Evaluating Justice Julian V. Roberts, Joe Hudson, 1993 There have been substantial developments in the field of program evaluation in Canada in recent years specifically in the evaluation of justice programs However there is very little published material available on program evaluations of justice programs in Canada Evaluating Justice Canadian Policies and Programs is intended to address this need and to serve as a supplementary text and reader that provides Canadian materials and cases illustrating basic principles for organizing and doing program evaluation research Practitioners in private practice and those employed in government as evaluators will find this book a useful source of information about the evaluation of justice programs in this country The book contains sections on the police courts and corrections Each chapter consists of case studies dealing with different substantive matters and justice programs undertaken in different parts of the country Each chapter presents basic information about the substantive program as well as the approach used in its formal evaluation Each chapter is written by a Canadian scholar or practitioner

Evaluation Melvin M. Mark, Gary T. Henry, George

Julnes,2000-09-15 This volume is essential reading for anyone interested in evaluation The authors draw from their experiences to present a practical theory of evaluation It provides a thorough discussion of the processes involved in conducting evaluations in both public and nonprofit organisations and programs Evaluating International Humanitarian Action Adrian Wood,Adrian P. Wood,Raymond Apthorpe,John Borton,2001-08-31 Humanitarian intervention has become a much more frequent form of development assistance and there has been a corresponding need to evaluate the effectiveness of such interventions This is the first compilation of the experiences of practitioners engaged in humanitarian programme evaluations and the lessons they have learned The case studies cover the different kinds of humanitarian emergency characteristic of the past decade The contributors address the context in which evaluations of humanitarian assistance take place the actual process of doing evaluations and the lessons for improving how such evaluations might be better undertaken in future This pioneering volume should be of practical value to agencies and individuals engaged in both the delivery of humanitarian assistance in complex emergencies and its evaluation
