The ITIL guiding principles

Guiding principle	Description
Focus on value	Everything that the organization does needs to create, directly or indirectly, a benefit to the organization. The focus on value principle encourages every organization, including the operations of customers and users. Do not just do things, do things with purpose and intention, and a focus on value. There is a link to the current service strategy, program, projects, and people that can be used to create the desired outcome. The current state should be investigated and assessed, clearly to determine what is already in place. Do not attempt to do everything at once. Start high, establish metrics, understand the status, by organizing each into smaller, manageable systems that can be assessed and compared in a timely manner. Do not be concerned a single focus or with effort.
Start where you are	Do not start with a clean slate. Investigate and understand what is already in place. Do not attempt to do everything at once. Start high, establish metrics, understand the status, by organizing each into smaller, manageable systems that can be assessed and compared in a timely manner. Do not be concerned a single focus or with effort.
Progress iteratively with feedback	Do not start with a clean slate. Investigate and understand what is already in place. Do not attempt to do everything at once. Start high, establish metrics, understand the status, by organizing each into smaller, manageable systems that can be assessed and compared in a timely manner. Do not be concerned a single focus or with effort.
Collaborate and promote visibility	Do not start with a clean slate. Investigate and understand what is already in place. Do not attempt to do everything at once. Start high, establish metrics, understand the status, by organizing each into smaller, manageable systems that can be assessed and compared in a timely manner. Do not be concerned a single focus or with effort.

Costs

Achieving desired outcomes requires resources (and therefore costs) which are associated with costs. Service providers help their customers to achieve outcomes and to design or take on some of the associated risks and costs. On the other hand, service relationships can introduce risks and costs, and in some cases, can negatively affect some of the intended outcomes after supporting others.

Guerrilla Capacity Planning Neil J. Gunther,2007-01-17 In these days of shortened fiscal horizons and contracted time to market schedules traditional approaches to capacity planning are often seen by management as tending to inflate their production schedules Rather than giving up in the face of this kind of relentless pressure to get things done faster Guerrilla Capacity Planning facilitates rapid forecasting of capacity requirements based on the opportunistic use of whatever performance data and tools are available in such a way that management insight is expanded but their schedules are not A key Guerrilla concept is tactical planning whereby short range planning questions and projects are brought up in team meetings such that management is compelled to know the answer and therefore buys into capacity planning without recognizing it as such Once you have your foot in the door capacity planning methods can be refined in an iterative cycle of improvement called The Wheel of Capacity Planning
