What are the differences between Connected and Unconnected Looking?

The differences are explained in the below table:

Connected Looking	Unconnected Looking
Connected looking involves relationships or activities and resources that directly link the parties.	Unconnected looking involves input values from the source to the output regardless of possible relationships.
Connected looking can use more systems and more data.	Unconnected looking needs limited or no system.
Connected looking can identify links that are normally not (e.g. network).	Unconnected looking can identify links that are normally not (e.g. network).
Connected looking involves and brings resources.	Unconnected looking involves using the existing setup and the relationships and the resources.
Supports and defines unique values that help to connect when similar conditions are not available.	Does not support and defines unique values.

What is meant by active and passive transformation?

Active transformation is the one that writes the log of the transformation.

- 1. Change the content of your dataset transformed input and output. Examples: Data transformation.
- 2. Change the structure/structure by shifting content of columns/parts. Examples: Transposed content transformation.
- 3. Change the data type. Examples: Update columns to string because it fits the new set of data. Example: Update of report.
