Gender-Based Violence, Law, and African Society Abiodun Raufu, Omolade Olomola, Edidiong Mendie, 2023-10-16

Gender based violence is a convoluted concept with no single explanation or solution Abiodun Raufu Omolade Olomola and Edidiong Mendie bring to light the different dimensions of gender based violence in Africa such as the challenges of patriarchy the limits of the law and the cultural acceptance of violence against women in the private sphere In spite of the different forms and causes of violence it is universally recognized as a destructive force that has extensive consequences for both individuals and society In order to combat violence it is important to understand its root causes and foundational issues to facilitate workable solutions through a range of strategies including education prevention and intervention programs This book will be of interest to students and scholars in criminology sociology legal studies African studies and more Gender, Violence and the Social Order J. Mooney, 2000-09-05 This is an exciting and innovative book which provides a thorough introduction to contemporary social theory by examining the way in which the widespread existence of violence against women is explored A wide range of theories from liberalism to evolutionary psychology are considered culminating in the development of a distinctive feminist realist position The theories discussed are tested against a large scale survey the findings of which challenge many conventional wisdoms as to the patterning of violence in contemporary society 2019 Annual trends and outlook report: Gender equality in rural Africa: From commitments to outcomes Agnes Quisumbing, Ruth Suseela Meinzen-Dick, Jemimah Njuki, 2019-10-31 Gender sensitive policy and programming have an integral role to play in fostering inclusive agricultural growth to meet the commitments of African countries to the Malabo Declaration goals The 2019 Annual Trends and Outlook Report from ReSAKSS applies a gender lens to key issues that must be addressed to fully achieve these goals Chapters examine the intersections between gender and 1 the context and institutions within which rural people operate 2 the natural resources that men and women depend on for agriculture sources of vulnerability and resilience to shocks 3 assets and income and 4 livelihood strategies and well being The report serves as the official M E report for the Comprehensive Africa Agriculture Development Programme CAADP tracking progress on over 30 CAADP indicators The Impact of Feminism on Political Concepts and Debates Georgina Blakeley, Valerie Bryson, 2007-10-15 Many feminists have engaged with man made concepts and approaches of traditional political analysis to produce an increasingly sophisticated and wide ranging body of thought This book starts with the idea that such work is not simply something for the girls Rather it has profound implications without which our understanding of political processes will be impoverished This book provides an accessible overview and assessment of the impact of recent feminism Each chapter takes a malestream concept and examines critical debates around it and feminist reactions critiques It analyses the significance of feminism for the concept and considers whether it can simply be extended to include women or whether it should be radically transformed or even abandoned Combating Gender Violence in and Around Schools Fiona E. Leach, Claudia Mitchell, 2006 Violence in and around schools is a global phenomenon but the gender dimension has been largely ignored This is the first a comprehensive account of the nature and scale of gender violence in school settings across the world The book will increase awareness and understanding of gender violence in school settings but it also presents innovative strategies to address it Many chapters focus on participatory methodologies for working with young people on reducing violent and abusive behaviour in school including through curriculum development and teacher education Other chapters deal with gender youth and sexuality in the context of HIV AIDS

Health Communication, Gender Violence, and ICTs in Nigeria, 2008 Reconsidering the Democratic Public George E. Marcus, Russell L. Hanson, 1993 This book offers a re examination of the evidence about citizens capacity for self governance and what it means for the future of democratic politics from both empirical and normative perspectives Are ordinary citizens capable of governing themselves For more than three decades social scientists have accumulated evidence of the undemocratic propensities of many ordinary citizens This has caused some to worry about the stability of existing democratic institutions while others argue that the institutions themselves are the problem politics needs to be democratized further giving citizens more opportunities to practice democratic politics and acquire democratic values The thirty three contributors to this volume enter this debate with new evidence on citizens capacity for deliberative politics They argue that previous methods of investigation significantly underestimate people s ability to govern themselves and that the prospects for democracy are better than conventional wisdom suggests Realization of these prospects will depend on citizens grasping the interplay of emotions and reason in political life creating new opportunities for citizen deliberation and reinvigorating the institutions of representative government Theories of democracy in turn will have to accommodate this changing reality as citizens show themselves to be self determining in their political activities

Journal of Peace Research, 2007-03 Defending Our Dreams Shamillah Wilson, Anasuya Sengupta, Kristy Evans, 2005-10 This book brings together analyses by feminists of diverse identities on themes including women s rights and economic change new technologies sexuality feminist organizations and movements It presents key issues arising out of the experiences of young women living in both North and South the challenges confronting young feminists and the agenda for a new era of feminist leadership and activism

Working with Men to End Gender-based Violence, 2004

Re-fashioning the Dialogue Robert Groves, National Association of Friendship Centres, Law Commission of Canada, 1999 Reports on the findings of a joint research project that focused on Aboriginal governance in urban settings and the challenge of engaging youth The project involved literature reviews legal policy analysis program service documentation best practices surveys and ten focus circles with Aboriginal groups The introduction sets the context for the project discusses four lines of debate regarding Aboriginal urban self government and reviews the rest of the report Part II sets out two broad normative frameworks for examining proposals for urban self government in order to explore key issues involved in considering various governance options Part II subjects basic models advanced to date for urban governance to a three step assessment It first reviews self government models commonly suggested in the two dominant normative frameworks of Aboriginal rights law and democratic liberalism It then draws on field research to assess issues of practicality in relation to urban governance Finally the report reviews the perceptions of urban Aboriginal people themselves and particularly the youth that participated in the focus circles as to their own sense of priorities and preferences for the nature and form that urban governance should take Appendices include an annotated bibliography responses to a survey of urban youth programs and focus circle results

Economic and Political Weekly, 2005-09

Violence Against Women in Sierra Leone Grace Amie Harman, 2015-03-17 Master's Thesis from the year 2018 in the subject Gender Studies grade A course MPhil Gender Studies language English abstract The study examines violence against women from the angle of intimate partner violence and was undertaken in Kambia and Moyamba Districts of Sierra Leone The rate of violence against women is high with five out of every ten women being abused by their intimate partners The level of tolerance for such violence by women themselves is also alarming The qualitative study investigated the possible underlying reasons behind this high prevalence as well the factors that place women in the position to tolerate violence A case study method was applied using semi structured interviews to collect primary data from 60 respondents comprising 20 community leaders 20 affected women and 20 women from peer groups of affected women selected using purposive sampling The research questioned the acceptable norms towards violence and how they are gendered how the various forms of violence against women are manifested the perspectives of men and women regarding intimate partner violence and finally the factors that place women in position to tolerate wife beating The conceptual framework is based on the social ecological model propagated by Lori Heise which was used to examine the multiple levels of the causes and perpetuation of violence in intimate relationships Key findings include the shared belief that women and men in the study area hold on women s inferiority to men Violence in general is not condoned in community settings However intimate partner violence is seen as a private matter and sometimes deemed necessary treatment of women who fail to meet or outstep their expected gender roles as wives and mothers Emotional violence is the most pervasive form of intimate partner violence In general affected women who tolerate violence have limited choices for opting out of the abusive relationship due mainly to large family size their lack of autonomy and restrictive social norms related to marriage Women tolerate abuse because of the shame associated with reporting it and rely instead on family mediation In conclusion I have proposed that women s low resilience to challenge diverse external forces is the key factor for acceptance of partner violence rather than her manipulation by external factors
