The Meridian System and Angular Measurement

Angles and distances have had their use since the dawn of time. In ancient Egypt, the Nile River was carefully measured to be prepared for its annual flood. Measurements for the pyramids included the perimeter and orientation. The Egyptians also used a particular instrument, the gnomon, to find paths. The gnomon was a vertical rod which cast the shadow of the rod and indicated the time and which indicated the direction of the shadow. The shadow cast by the gnomon at different times of the day would indicate the direction of the shadow. The shadow cast by the gnomon at different times of the day would indicate the direction of the shadow. The shadow cast by the gnomon at different times of the day would indicate the direction of the shadow.

1. The Meridian System

To find the time of day, it is necessary to know the position of the sun. The sun is always in the same position at the same time of day. The sun is always in the same position at the same time of day. The sun is always in the same position at the same time of day.
