

Plans for Reconstruction

After the Civil War, many Americans believed Reconstruction should be a process of difficulty in restoring the South to its former status. A plan for Reconstruction was drafted by a group of officials. These officials proposed a Reconstruction plan, including a Reconstruction Act which would set the first step in the process. The Reconstruction Act of 1867 would set the first step in the process. The Reconstruction Act of 1867 would set the first step in the process.

The Reconstruction Amendments

Between 1865 and 1870, three amendments to the Constitution were ratified, which would become known as the Reconstruction Amendments. Numerically, they are the 13th, 14th, and 15th Amendments, which gave equal rights to the formerly enslaved people. The 13th Amendment abolished slavery, the 14th Amendment granted citizenship to all persons born or naturalized in the United States, and the 15th Amendment prohibited the federal government and the states from denying a citizen the right to vote on the basis of race, color, or previous condition of servitude.

The 13th Amendment passed in Congress on January 19, 1865, a few months before President Lincoln was assassinated. It was first formally ratified on December 6 of that year. The 14th Amendment is considered to be the one which formally ended slavery in the United States.
