Introduction

Potato is regarded as a high-potential food security crop due to its ability to provide high yield and quality product per unit input with a short crop cycle (mostly <120 days). The national average yield at present is approximately 10.5 t/ha, which is lower than the world's average yield of 17 t/ha (Muthoni et al., 2011). The potential of potato crop has not been adequately exploited. The crop is mainly grown at high altitudes of 1,500–3,000 masl by small-scale farmers, who account for over 90% of the production. Most of the production is under rainfed conditions and carried out in scattered patches of intensive small-scale agriculture (McArthur, 1989).

There are a number of production problems. The major ones are unavailability and high cost of seed tubers; lack of well-adapted cultivars to the major agro-ecological zones; suboptimal agronomic practices; the prevalence of diseases and insect pests; and inadequate storage, transportation, and marketing facilities. To address these problems, the Ethiopian Institute Agricultural Research (EIAR)—the then Institute of Agricultural Research—in collaboration with the International Potato Center (CIP), initiated potato research. The research had as its main objectives to

- develop adaptable and high-yielding potato cultivars with good resistance to biotic and abiotic stresses;
- identify the best agronomic practices and storage systems;
- adopt the use of botanical seed as an alternative propagation method;
- develop seed production system in the country; and
- train farmers and other stakeholders.

Among potato production problems, a major bottleneck that contributes to low yield in Ethiopia is the lack of healthy and quality seed tubers in the required quantity and quality (Berga and Gebremedhin, 1994). There is no formal seed system operating for clean/healthy potato seed multiplication and distribution in Ethiopia. Hirpa et al. (2010) reported that potato seed production in Ethiopia is basically informal, which in most cases operates by recycling planting materials

Potato and Sweetpotato in Africa Jan Low, Moses Nyongesa, Sara Quinn, Monica Parker, 2015-10-28 Sweetpotato and potato are expanding faster than any other food crops in sub Saharan Africa There is growing investment in research to address bottlenecks in value chains concerning these two crops and growing interest from the private sector in investing in them This book addresses five major themes on sweetpotato and potato policies for germplasm exchange food security and trade in Africa seed systems breeding and disease management post harvest management processing technologies and marketing systems nutritional value and changing behaviours Biotechnologies of Crop Improvement, Volume 1 Satbir Singh Gosal, Shabir Hussain Wani, 2018-06-22 During the past 15 years cellular and molecular approaches have emerged as valuable adjuncts to supplement and complement conventional breeding methods for a wide variety of crop plants Biotechnology increasingly plays a role in the creation conservation characterization and utilization of genetic variability for germplasm enhancement For instance anther microspore culture somaclonal variation embryo culture and somatic hybridization are being exploited for obtaining incremental improvement in the existing cultivars In addition genes that confer insect and disease resistance abiotic stress tolerance herbicide tolerance and quality traits have been isolated and re introduced into otherwise sensitive or susceptible species by a variety of transgenic techniques Together these transformative methodologies grant access to a greater repertoire of genetic diversity as the genes may come from viruses bacteria fungi insects animals human beings unrelated plants or even be artificially derived Remarkable achievements have been made in the production characterization field evaluation and commercialization of transgenic crop varieties worldwide Likewise significant advances have been made towards increasing crop yields improving nutritional quality enabling crops to be raised under adverse conditions and developing resistance to pests and diseases for sustaining global food and nutritional security The overarching purpose of this 3 volume work is to summarize the history of crop improvement from a technological perspective but to do so with a forward outlook on further advancement and adaptability to a changing world Our carefully chosen case studies of important plant crops intend to serve a diverse spectrum of audience looking for the right tools to tackle complicated local and global issues Circular - University of Montana, Agricultural Experiment Station Montana Agricultural Experiment Station, 1915 Enhancing Seed Production Capacity of Small-scale Farmers P.
