

1

Start With a "Seasonal Flip"

Instead of waiting until the summer season of your year, start to re-evaluate projects yourself for the fall by looking over the items you no longer need.

2

Maximize a Small Space

Look for ways to use every square inch of your space. Maximize vertical space to create systems and increase the amount of storage space in smaller rooms.

3

Show Kids How to Organize

Be young kids' first sorting things into the right bins. Encourage them to help with organizing their toys and clothes. It's a life lesson.

4

Containerize Your Items

Are you looking for a way to get organized up for winter? Use fall, winter, and holiday-themed bins in all your organizing.

5

Work With Your Natural Tendencies

Work with your natural "flow" and create a system that works with your personal habits.

6

Increase Your Productivity

According to Marie Kondo, a path to greater happiness and productivity lies in the things you own. Organize your space and the time spent searching for things you actually need and enjoy.
