Independent Assortment (Mendel's 2nd)

1. Sample Problem: Two pea plants self-fertilize and produce the genotypic distribution shown. Is possible that one of these a pair of genes that assort independently with a third unpaired trait in the progeny as well? Explain whether/why and be specific!

2.

3. Self-fertilizing pea plants self-fertilize & result with the following genotypes, what will be the phenotypic ratios for the offspring? What will be the genotypic and phenotypic ratios?

They will all be tall, half round/flat, homozygous/dominant and the other half heterozygous

Interdependence

4. Which a pair of genes that assort independently should give a 16:16 ratio of tall to short and 16:16 ratio of round to flat? Explain whether/why and be specific!

Both would be heterozygous, and the other half heterozygous/recessive

5. If the genes for stem color, flower color, and height assort independently, what will be the ratio of tall green flowers to tall purple flowers to short green flowers to short purple flowers? Explain how you determine the ratio, including the ratio itself.

Height: Cc, Flower: cc, Color: Cc

6. Assume all heterozygous alleles assort independently. If a pea plant is heterozygous for all four traits listed in the paragraph above, the probability of the following?

Height: Cc, Flower: cc, Color: Cc, Shape: Cc

7. Assume all heterozygous alleles assort independently. There are four children from a pea plant that is heterozygous for all four traits listed above. What is the probability of all three products?

Height: Cc, Flower: cc, Color: Cc, Shape: Cc

8. Assume all heterozygous alleles assort independently. What is the probability of all three products listed above? Explain whether/why and be specific!

Height: Cc, Flower: Cc, Color: Cc, Shape: Cc

9. Is it possible to determine if a trait is on the Y-chromosome? If yes, how? If not, why not? Explain how you determine the answer, including the probability ratios.

Yes, autosomal recessive

10. Assume that the heterozygous alleles assort independently. Antigen receptors allow bodies that are shape, height, and color with antigens. What is the probability that they will be associated with antigens?

None that matter, alleles sort in pairs

11. In the 1930s, a scientist discovered a pea plant with a dominant allele for height, a dominant allele for stem color, and a dominant allele for flower color. She self-fertilized this pea plant and produced 160 offspring. Of these offspring, 16 were tall, purple flowers, and round seeds. How many offspring were short, purple flowers, and round seeds? Explain how you determine the answer, including the probability ratios.

ambitious comprehensive reimagining of 21st century higher education Improving Quality in American Higher Education outlines the fundamental concepts and competencies society demands from today's college graduates and provides a vision of the future for students, faculty, and administrators. Based on a national multidisciplinary effort to define and measure learning outcomes, the Measuring College Learning project, this book identifies essential concepts and competencies for six disciplines. These essential concepts and competencies represent efforts towards articulating a consensus among faculty in biology, business, communication, economics, history, and sociology disciplines that account for nearly 40 percent of undergraduate majors in the United States. Contributions from thought leaders in higher education, including Ira Katznelson, George Kuh, and Carol Geary Schneider, offer expert perspectives and persuasive arguments for the need for greater clarity, intentionality, and quality in U.S. higher education. College faculty are our best resource for improving the quality of undergraduate education. This book offers a path forward based on faculty perspectives nationwide. Clarify program structure and aims. Articulate high-quality learning goals. Rigorously measure student progress. Prioritize higher-order competencies and disciplinarily grounded conceptual understandings. A culmination of over two years of efforts by faculty and association leaders from six disciplines, this book distills the national conversation into a delineated set of fundamental ideas and practices and advocates for the development and use of rigorous assessment tools that are valued by faculty, students, and society. Improving Quality in American Higher Education brings faculty voices to the fore of the conversation and offers an insightful look at the state of higher education and a realistic strategy for better serving our students.
