Performance Appraisal in Modern Employment Relations

Tindara Addabbo, Edoardo Ales, Ylenia Curzi, Tommaso Fabbri, Olga Rymkevich, Iacopo Senatori, 2019-12-10 Contributing to the debate on work performance evaluation in a time of technological transformation this book explores the impact of digitisation on production and organisation models as well as on the rights and interests of the stakeholders involved As organisations down size merge with other companies and become decentralised the boundaries in employer employee customer relationships are blurred and new models for the organisation and assessment of work performance have emerged With these new models innovative regulatory approaches are sorely needed Taking an interdisciplinary approach and drawing on theoretical concepts from organisation studies human resource management sociology and labour economics this all encompassing collection is not only essential reading for academics and students but also for policy makers and employers who are looking for innovative and practical solutions to the challenges of modern employment relations

Managing Knowledge, Absorptive Capacity And Innovation Joe Tidd, 2021-05-05 Knowledge Management focuses on identifying sharing storing and exploiting internal knowledge whereas Open Innovation is more concerned with sources of external knowledge However this simple dichotomy between open and closed approaches is unhelpful and not realistic Instead it is the interaction between internal and external knowledge that creates dynamic capabilities and the ability to innovate In particular we need to better understand the interactions between internal and external knowledge and how these influence innovation outcomes under different conditions This edited volume Managing Knowledge Absorptive Capacity and Innovation provides an opportunity to combine contemporary interests in Open Innovation with the classic notion of absorptive capacity to better understand how organisations can manage the absorption and exploitation of inbound external sources of knowledge in order to innovate

Measuring Innovative Work Behaviour Jeroen P.J de Jong, Deanne N. Den Hartog, 2010 Both scientists and practitioners emphasize the importance of innovative work behaviour IWB of individual employees for organizational success but the measurement of IWB is still at an evolutionary stage This article is concerned with developed a measure of IWB with four potential dimensions the exploration generation championing and implementation of ideas From a pilot survey among 81 research professionals and their supervisors we derived an initial version of ten items Next analysis of validity drew on survey data from 703 matched dyads of knowledge workers and their supervisors in 94 knowledge intensive services firms It included confirmatory factor analyses and hierarchical multilevel regressions to test hypothesized relationships of IWB with related constructs including participative leadership external work contacts and innovative output These analyses demonstrated sufficient reliability and criterion validity Evidence for the distinctiveness of the four dimensions was however weak suggesting that IWB is one dimensional We conclude that further research on this issue is merited
