Talia has a secret one that will save her world and yet rip it apart. Only she can decide if the price is worth it. Scientist Talia Zaryn has always dreamt of an alien invasion and of her own death. She's kept it a secret, hoping it is nothing more than childish nightmares. But when her face in the mirror matches that of her dreams, she fears they will become reality. If she can prove that life exists beyond their planet, perhaps people will then prepare to fight. Talia's work at the Space Exploration Foundation leaves no time for personal relationships, but Major Landry Sutton is not looking for a friend. He is looking for a traitor. His ability to sense emotions convinces him Talia is that traitor until a touch sizzles between them. In an instant, their minds are connected. Just as the two begin to trust each other, the invading force arrives. Talia and Landry must uncover the secrets of Sendek's past if they hope to defeat these terrifying creatures. The Dragumon have been defeated but the planet Sendek will never be the same. In order to save their world Talia and Landry Sutton had to wake the forgotten magic on Sendek. But instead of restoring peace it creates chaos on the city streets with those unable to work magic turning against those who can. When Talia and Landry travel to the planet Orek to discover how it combines magic and science they find a new anti-magical government. The Controllers have all the tech weapons and natural resources. On Orek the magical outcasts beg Talia and Landry to help them rise up against their oppressors. The two must decide whether to help save Orek or return home and save their own planet. Talia and Landry are torn apart by the conflicting missions. Talia knows what Landry wants but if she gives in she could lose what she loves the most. Praise Dragons' magic and the unbreakable love of Landry and Talia makes the sequel to The Magic Wakes a true joy.
