The Parks Belong to the People Joe Weber, Selima Sultana, 2024-04 In examining the 424 units of the U S national park system geographers Joe Weber and Selima Sultana focus attention on the historical geography of the system as well as its present distribution covering the diversity of places under the control of the National Park Service NPS This includes the famous national parks such as the Grand Canyon Yellowstone and Yosemite and the lesser known national monuments memorials lakeshores seashores rivers recreation areas preserves reserves parkways historic sites historic parks and a range of battlefields as well as more than twenty additional sites not fitting into any of these categories such as the White House The geographic view of The Parks Belong to the People sets it apart from others that have taken a solely historical approach Where parks are located what they are near where their visitors come from and how land use and activities are organized within parks are some of the fundamental issues discussed The majority of units in the NPS are devoted to recreation areas or historic sites such as battlefields archaeological sites or sites devoted to a specific person and this is reflected in the authors approach What we think of as a national park has changed over the years and will continue to change Weber and Sultana emphasize changing social and political environments in which NPS units were created and the roles they serve such as protecting scenery providing wildlife habitats preserving history and serving as scientific laboratories and places for outdoor recreation The authors also focus on parks as public facilities and sites of economic activities National parks were created by people for people to enjoy at great cost and with great benefit They cannot be understood without taking this human context into account

DNA, Race, and Reproduction Emily Klancher Merchant, Meaghan O'Keefe, 2025-01-07 A free ebook version of this title is available through Luminos University of California Press's Open Access publishing program Visit www.luminosoa.org to learn more DNA Race and Reproduction helps readers inside and outside of academia evaluate and engage with the current genomic landscape It brings together expertise in law medicine religion history anthropology philosophy and genetics to examine how scientists medical professionals and laypeople use genomic concepts to construct racial identity and make or advise reproductive decisions often at the same moment It critically and accessibly interrogates how DNA figures in the reproduction of racialized bodies and the racialization of reproduction and examines the privileged position from which genomic knowledge claims to speak about human bodies societies and activities The volume begins from the premise that reproduction regardless of the means forces a confrontation between biomedical scientific and popular understandings of genetics and that those understandings are often racialized It therefore centers reproduction as both a site of analysis and an analytic lens
