Deception Rukmini Bhaya Nair,2025-11-27 Deception challenges readers to think about their own lies from their first lies in childhood to the clever provocative ones they told just recently Scouring a number of texts in philosophy poetics literature and theory both western and eastern the book urges that at a time when phrases like fake news gaslighting and false narratives have become an intrinsic part of global vocabulary an interdisciplinary discussion on the intertwined future of the twins lying and truth telling is an urgent imperative Rukmini Bhaya Nair explores the distinction between lies metaphor and narrative performativity presenting them as part of an interactive continuum informing how cultures engage with the concept of truth With an engaging intellectual energy Nair s discussion traverses an impressive diversity of writers and thinkers including Paul Grice Ludwig Wittgenstein Paul De Man Noam Chomsky the Natyashastra of Bharata Sylvia Plath and Salman Rushdie She argues that literary texts permit a re evaluation of truth telling conventions and offer a space to theorize and understand crises and problems in the world Augmenting observations on philosophy fiction poetry and literary theory with scholarship in cognitive linguistics the book shows how metaphors fictions and lies can function as potent cognitive stimulants Deception lays the groundwork for a truly inter disciplinary account of lying as a deep rooted form of linguistic behavior which will appeal to anyone interested in research on developmental psychology philosophy of language literary and cultural studies and linguistics

Popular Postcolonialisms Nadia Atia, Kate Houlden, 2018-07-04 Drawing together the insights of postcolonial scholarship and cultural studies Popular Postcolonialisms questions the place of the popular in the postcolonial paradigm Multidisciplinary in focus this collection explores the extent to which popular forms are infused with colonial logics and whether they can be employed by those advocating for change It considers a range of fiction film and non hegemonic cultural forms engaging with topics such as environmental change language activism and cultural imperialism alongside analysis of figures like Tarzan and Frankenstein Building on the work of cultural theorists it asks whether the popular is actually where elite conceptions of the world may best be challenged It also addresses middlebrow cultural production which has tended to be seen as antithetical to radical traditions asking whether this might in fact form an unlikely realm from which to question critique or challenge colonial tropes Examining the ways in which the imprint of colonial history is in evidence interrogated mythologized or sublimated within popular cultural production this book raises a series of speculative questions exploring the interrelation of the popular and the postcolonial
