In previous editions we discussed how to move your functions to Office 365. We agree that all your settings should be done in the Office 365 Admin Center (AC) for Exchange, SharePoint, Teams and OneDrive, and not in the local Exchange or SharePoint servers as a fallback. The only reason why you might use a local server is a single user who has the flexibility of Exchange and your email can be affected connected with the other mail options.

This chapter focuses on the administration of the Exchange subscription for Office 365. There is a caveat, and your administrators must be looking at the complete set of components as well. There is a caveat, however, and the administrators are asked to perform these tasks using their existing skills in adding mail plans or moving mailboxes to a new Exchange subscription type (see Table 8-1).
