Book Description The Linux OS and its embedded and server applications are critical components of today's software infrastructure in a decentralized networked universe. The industry's demand for proficient Linux developers is only rising with time. Hands On System Programming with Linux gives you a solid theoretical base and practical industry relevant descriptions and covers the Linux system programming domain. It delves into the art and science of Linux application programming system architecture process memory and management signaling timers pthreads and file IO. This book goes beyond the use API X to do Y approach; it explains the concepts and theories required to understand programming interfaces and design decisions, the tradeoffs made by experienced developers when using them, and the rationale behind them. Troubleshooting tips and techniques are included in the concluding chapter. By the end of this book, you will have gained essential conceptual design knowledge and hands-on experience working with Linux system programming interfaces.

What you will learn Explore the theoretical underpinnings of Linux system architecture. Understand why modern OSes use virtual memory and dynamic memory APIs. Get to grips with dynamic memory issues and effectively debug them. Learn key concepts and powerful system APIs related to process management. Effectively perform file IO and use signaling and timers. Deeply understand multithreading concepts pthreads APIs synchronization and scheduling.

Who this book is for Hands On System Programming with Linux is for Linux system engineers, programmers, or anyone who wants to go beyond using an API set to understanding the theoretical underpinnings and concepts behind powerful Linux system programming APIs. To get the most out of this book, you should be familiar with Linux at the user level, logging in using shell via the command line interface, the ability to use tools such as find, grep, and sort. Working knowledge of the C programming language is required. No prior experience with Linux systems programming is assumed.

Computer Viruses: from theory to applications Eric Filiol, 2006-03-30. Viruses don't harm; ignorance does. Is ignorance a defense? I am convinced that computer viruses are not evil and that programmers have a right to create them, to possess them, and to experiment with them. Truth seekers and wise men have been persecuted by powerful idiots in every age. Mark A. Ludwig. Everyone has the right to freedom of opinion and expression; this right includes freedom to hold opinions without interference and to seek, receive, and impart information and ideas through any media and regardless of frontiers. Article 19 of Universal Declaration of Human Rights. The purpose of this book is to propose a teaching approach to understand what computer viruses really are and how they work. To do this, three aspects are covered, ranging from theoretical fundamentals to practical applications and technical features, fully detailed, commented source code. We will systematically use the plural form viruses instead of the literal one virus. The latter is now an obsolete though grammatically recommended form. Preface. Codes of viruses as well as inherent applications are proposed. So far, the applications-oriented aspects have hardly ever been addressed through the scarce existing literature devoted to computer viruses.
