Not illustrated 1917 edition Excerpt 6 Columns for Discount on Purchases and Discount on Notes on the same side of the Cash Book c Columns for Discount on Sales and Cash Sales on the debit side of the Cash Book d Departmental columns in the Sales Book and in the Purchase Book Controlling Accounts The addition of special columns in books of original entry makes possible the keeping of Controlling Accounts The most common examples of such accounts are Accounts Receivable account and Accounts Payable account These summary accounts respectively displace individual customers and creditors accounts in the Ledger The customers accounts are then segregated in another book called the Sales Ledger or Customers Ledger while the creditors accounts are kept in the Purchase or Creditors Ledger The original Ledger now much reduced in size is called the General Ledger The Trial Balance now refers to the accounts in the General Ledger It is evident that the task of taking a Trial Balance is greatly simplified because so many fewer accounts are involved A Schedule of Accounts Receivable is then prepared consisting of the balances found in the Sales Ledger and its total must agree with the balance of the Accounts Receivable account shown in the Trial Balance A similar Schedule of Accounts Payable made up of all the balances in the Purchase Ledger is prepared and it must agree with the balance of the Accounts Payable account of the General Ledger The Balance Sheet In the more elementary part of the text the student learned how to prepare a Statement of Assets and Liabilities for the purpose of disclosing the net capital of an enterprise In the present chapter he was shown how to prepare a similar statement the Balance Sheet For all practical

Excerpt from An Elementary Course of Civil Engineering

Could he have prevailed upon himself in obedience to what appears to be the pervading taste of the moment to have pursued a different course he should have held himself not only as recreant to that cause but as having contributed to weaken the powers of the human mind by relieving it of the necessity for patient investigation and close reasoning which alone can give it that vigour which achieves excellence and commands success in every department of life

United States Military Academy June 1 1837

Note As the author frequently receives letters from persons about commencing the study of civil engineering asking his counsel both as to the best course to be pursued and the best works to be studied he would in this place respectfully offer the following remarks

A thorough acquaintance with the mathematics the author considers as indispensable to a successful pursuit of this profession without this essential ground work he confesses that he is entirely at a loss to conceive how any sound acquirements other than a few mechanical rules acquired in the routine of practice can be made in it

Without wishing to prejudice the works of others the author would call attention to the very complete Course of Mathematics of Professor Davies late Professor of Mathematics in the Military Academy as the best that has fallen under his observation in the English language

The great success of this gentleman as a teacher is alone a sufficient guarantee of the excellence of his works in the arrangements of which moreover he has followed the best of mathematical schools the French As more immediately connected with the mathematics and as an indispensable branch of knowledge to the engineer the author would also mention a Treatise on Topography by Lieutenant Eastman of the United States Army now acting as Assistant Teacher of Drawing in the Military Academy which is now in the hands of the publisher and may be shortly expected from the press

The merits of this gentleman as a finished draughtsman may lead us to expect an excellent work on this branch Connected with the Art of Constructions and applied mathematics the author would mention the name of M Navier The European reputation of this eminent savan and engineer would render eulogium from the author more if possible than supererogatory His name is connected either as author or editor with the ablest works on the subject under consideration that have appeared in France within the last twenty years and the best counsel that the author could give to every young engineer is to place in his library every work of science to which M Navier s name is in any way attached Of treatises on special branches of civil engineering the author would mention Smeaton s works generally The Articles Bridge Canals and Carpentry in the Edinburgh Encyclopedia and the Supolements both to it and to the Encyclopedia Britannica Tredgold on Carpentry Tredgold on Cast iron Transactions of the Society of Civil Engineers De Pambour on Locomotives Wood on Rail roads About the Publisher Forgotten Books publishes hundreds of thousands of rare and classic books Find more at www.forgottenbooks.com This book is a reproduction of an important historical work Forgotten Books uses state of the art technology to digitally reconstruct the work preserving the original format whilst repairing imperfections present in the aged copy In rare cases an imperfection in the original such as a blemish or missing page may be replicated in our edition We do however repair the vast majority of imperfections successfully any imperfections that remain are intentionally left to preserve the state of such historical works
