

Effect of Market-Related Investment

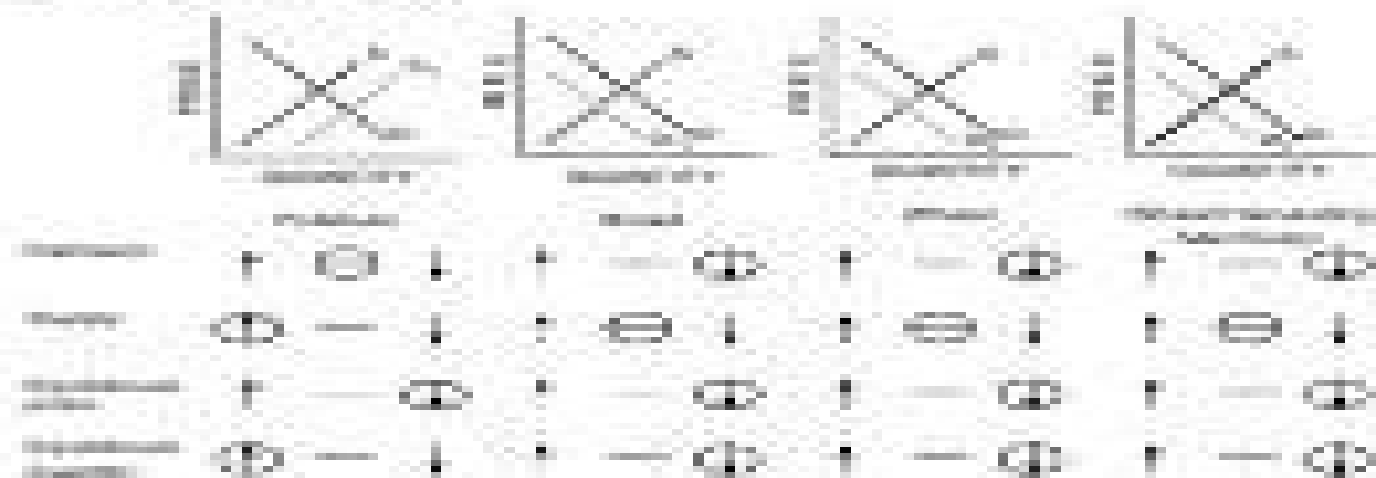

Market-related investments involve buying or selling stocks or bonds. These investments are typically not held as long-term investments, but rather are primarily speculative and they are highly liquid investments. The company's investment objectives are specified in Exhibit 14.1 before the market investments. Even though the market is the primary focus, the company may also have other investments that are not highly liquid. These investments are typically held for a long period of time, and they are not highly liquid. These investments are typically held for a long period of time, and they are not highly liquid.
