

Colour

Colour is often one of the most exciting components of a painting, but what exactly is it? Understanding the basic principles of colour theory helps you analyse how others might use colour in their work. They use colour together with composition, perspective, and light and shade to strengthen the impact of the artwork itself.

Mixing and comparing colours

The amount of light makes colours visible. Light from a source of different angles, colour and how transparent different pigments or different colours. The range of wavelengths you see is called the visible spectrum; the shorter visible wavelengths appear violet and the longest to red. There are gaps made from quantum jumps that occur some wavelengths and others above. Use of colours in traditional work. The colour in a painting can provide the means of reflecting light.

The colour wheel

From understanding and use of color, the color wheel is a tool used by artists and designers to help them understand and use color. It is a circular diagram that shows the relationships between colors. The primary colors are red, yellow, and blue. The secondary colors are green, cyan, and magenta. The tertiary colors are orange, red-violet, and blue-violet. The color wheel is a useful tool for understanding color theory and for creating color schemes.

Primary and secondary

Primary colors are the colors that cannot be created by mixing other colors. Secondary colors are created by mixing two primary colors. The primary colors are red, yellow, and blue. The secondary colors are green, cyan, and magenta.

How artists use colour

It is not just the color but the way it is used that matters. Artists use color to create a mood, to tell a story, to create a sense of depth and to create a sense of movement. They use color to create a sense of harmony and to create a sense of contrast. They use color to create a sense of balance and to create a sense of rhythm.
