Chromatography is used to separate out different components in a sample. In this experiment, the photosynthetic pigments of a green sample are separated into bands of colour by paper chromatography. The size of a spot of coloured pigment will depend on its solubility.

These were the best results obtained by my group. The Rf value was the calculated because I did not have time.

The results were not as expected this could be because instead of acetone we changed acetone to propanone therefore the number of drops needed for optimum results could've changed.

The method I was using the size of the sample of leaf was not specified therefore that could have also affected

The results.
