

Q.2 a. With neat diagrams explain the configuration of a step-by-step switching system. (8)

Answer:

The schematic diagram for such an exchange is given in Fig. Each subscriber is connected to a single rotary pre-selector switch at the exchange, the outputs from this switch being connected to a bank of two-motion switches known as 'group selectors'. The outputs from the pre-selector switches of a whole group of subscribers are connected together in parallel as that group of subscribers share a single bank of group selectors. When a subscriber lifts his telephone, the cradle switch causes a circuit to be completed back to the telephone exchange, signaling that the subscriber wishes to make a call. This causes the pre-selector switch to step around until it finds a free group selector. The pre-selector switch then stop in this position and the group selector is 'seized' by the subscriber wishing to make a call.

On seizing the group selector, the subscriber dials his first digit and the selector switch moves up to the appropriate row on the switch contact array. Each final selector has the possibility of connection to 100 lines. The 1000 lines are therefore divided into 10 groups of 100 each, the group being identified by the first digit in the subscriber's number. The vertical motion of the group selector therefore selects a final selector in the group associated with the first digit dialed. Each individual row of contacts, or levels, of the group selector is connected to a bank of final selectors associated with a particular group of 100 line numbers. Having dialed the first digit to select the appropriate group, the group selector arm then automatically rotates in the vertical direction until it finds a free final selector. In the final selector, both directions of motion are under the control of the subscriber's dial and, after dialing two further digits, connection is established, providing the called subscriber's to answer his telephone.

b. List the basic functions of a switching system. (8)

Answer:

The switching office performs the following basic functions irrespective of the system whether it is a manual or electromechanical or electronic switching system.

1. Identity. The local switching center must react to a calling signal from calling subscriber and must be able to receive information to identify the required destination terminal seize.
2. Addressing. The switching system must be able to identify the called subscriber from the input information

Switching Systems in Telecommunication Networks dr. eng. Alexandru Rusu-Casandra, dr. eng. Marius-Constantin Vochin, dr. eng. Lucian Gabriel Ioan, 2019-05-15 Switching and routing are two types of procedures having the same fundamental purpose which is transferring information between different users of communication networks But while routing must be viewed at the overall level of the communication network the information being exchanged between network nodes switching refers to operations involving a single communication node the information being transferred between its input output access ports It should also be noted that the routing is executed according to a routing protocol used on the network while the switching is based on elements belonging to a single node in the network namely its switching structure routing table and path selection algorithm between ports

Telecommunications Switching Principles Michael Turner Hills, 1982 Telecommunications Switching J. Gordon Pearce, 2013-06-29 The motivation for this book stems from an early exposure to the book Applied Mechanics by John Perry Professor Perry strove to encourage his readers to understand the applications and use of mathematics in engineering with out insisting that they become immersed in pure mathematics The following text uses this approach to the application of telecommunications switching Readers wishing to study the derivation and proof of formulas will be able to do so using relevant references The existence of low cost programmable calculators frees practicing engineers from much laborious calculation allowing more time for creative design and application of the art The reader should not need to be able to derive formulas in order to apply them just as to quote Professor Perry He should not have to be able to design a watch in order to tell time The material for this book has been drawn from my own experience in the field Inevitably however I have used CCITT and Bell System publications for references and in some cases quotation and I gratefully acknowledge permission for their use I am also grateful to Stromberg Carlson Corporation for their earlier encouragement and support without which this book would not have been possible Thanks are also due to Fred Hadfield for his advice and assistance in the preparation of the many figures and to my wife Ada for her support and patience as I pursued the demanding but interesting task of producing the text
