China's growing economic and political stability have for the first time started to gain international recognition. As China increasingly opens up to the world, its unique role in the context of economic globalization is becoming more pronounced, which is exemplified by its recent membership of the WTO and Beijing's successful bid to host the Olympic Games. Unsurprisingly, this has resulted in an explosion in the popularity of English language learning in China, which has in turn led to radical reform of the curricula, teaching methods, teacher education, and assessment system in China in order to improve standards. This fascinating monograph explores the nature of the implemented English language curriculum in China, focussing in particular on the pedagogy of secondary school teachers. There follows an insightful analysis into how such teachers in different situations and with different backgrounds and motivations make decisions about what and how they teach, and the extent to which they adapt the promoted methods in their individual teaching environments. The authors then use their findings to propose an innovative and coherent framework which has far-reaching consequences for pedagogy in China and across the world.

Social Interaction and English Language Teacher Identity John Gray, Tom Morton, 2018-05-15

Social interaction and English language teacher identity uses fine-grained analyses of interaction in a range of teacher education and professional practice settings in ELT to explore the different identities and power relationships which teachers orient to. It traces the role of identity and interaction in the processes of acquiring new teaching skills and knowledge, reflecting on professional practice and constructing teaching selves, and explores the limits and constraints on these processes imposed by global forces such as the marketization of education. The book is written for teachers, teacher educators, postgraduate students, and researchers interested in the relationships between social interaction, identity, and professional practice in ELT.
