

Activity: Researching Author-Character Connections - Example

This lesson addresses reading writing standards across two novels. Part of this problem is that many students do not have the skills to read for meaning or to make connections between their own lives and the characters in the text. This is an example of the work that we do in this activity.

The goal of this activity is to help students make connections between the text and their own lives. The activity is designed to help you understand the writing process and structure and to encourage students to make connections between the text and their own lives. This is an example of the work that we do in this activity. See this page for additional work on connecting the text to the lives of the characters.

Question	How does the author use the story to show the connection between the text and the characters? How does the author use the story to show the connection between the text and the characters? How does the author use the story to show the connection between the text and the characters? How does the author use the story to show the connection between the text and the characters?
Answer	In this story, the author uses the story to show the connection between the text and the characters. The author uses the story to show the connection between the text and the characters. The author uses the story to show the connection between the text and the characters. The author uses the story to show the connection between the text and the characters.
Discussion	There are many ways to connect the text and the characters. One way is to look at the characters' actions and how they relate to the text. Another way is to look at the characters' thoughts and how they relate to the text. A third way is to look at the characters' feelings and how they relate to the text. There are many other ways to connect the text and the characters.
Summary	The author uses the story to show the connection between the text and the characters. The author uses the story to show the connection between the text and the characters. The author uses the story to show the connection between the text and the characters. The author uses the story to show the connection between the text and the characters.
