CHAPTER 1

Section 1: Population Dynamics (page 10-15)

Compare methods used about population characteristics.

Methods of population data collection are categorized as follows:

cross-sectional population study

cohort studies

case-control studies

surveys

Some characteristics that all populations have include (1) population density

(2) population size and (3) population structure. Population size is the number of individuals in a population, and the term population structure refers to the number of individuals in each age group. Factors that limit population growth are density-dependent and density-independent.

Compare methods used about population characteristics.

Compare methods by marking the correct column. (Use the key provided.)

Characteristic	Density-Dependent	Density-Independent
(1) Population density increases
(2) Density-dependent factors affect population	X
(3) Density-independent factors affect population		X
(4) All organisms die at the same rate		X

Characteristics of four types of life histories are given. Mark the correct column for each characteristic using X's.

(1) Population density (increases / decreases / not density-dependent)

not

(2) Density-dependent factors affect population

Density-Dependent

(3) All individuals die regardless of age (density-dependent / density-independent)

Density-Independent

(4) Reproductive success of offspring is affected by offspring density
