Broadcast Hysteria A. Brad Schwartz, 2015-05-05 On the evening of October 30 1938 radio listeners across the United States heard a startling report of a meteor strike in the New Jersey countryside With sirens blaring in the background announcers in the field described mysterious creatures terrifying war machines and thick clouds of poison gas moving toward New York City As the invading force approached Manhattan some listeners sat transfixed while others ran to alert neighbors or to call the police Some even fled their homes But the hair raising broadcast was not a real news bulletin it was Orson Welles's adaptation of the H G Wells classic The War of the Worlds In Broadcast Hysteria A Brad Schwartz boldly retells the story of Welles's famed radio play and its impact Did it really spawn a wave of mass hysteria as The New York Times reported Schwartz is the first to examine the hundreds of letters sent to Orson Welles himself in the days after the broadcast and his findings challenge the conventional wisdom Few listeners believed an actual attack was under way But even so Schwartz shows that Welles's broadcast became a major scandal prompting a different kind of mass panic as Americans debated the bewitching power of the radio and the country's vulnerability in a time of crisis When the debate was over American broadcasting had changed for good but not for the better As Schwartz tells this story we observe how an atmosphere of natural disaster and impending war permitted broadcasters to create shared live national experiences for the first time We follow Orson Welles's rise to fame and watch his manic energy and artistic genius at work in the play's hurried yet innovative production And we trace the present day popularity of fake news back to its source in Welles's show and its many imitators Schwartz's original research gifted storytelling and thoughtful analysis make Broadcast Hysteria a groundbreaking new look at a crucial but little understood episode in American history

Plugged In Patti M. Valkenburg, 2017-04-25 An illuminating study of the complex relationship between children and media in the digital age Now as never before young people are surrounded by media thanks to the sophistication and portability of the technology that puts it literally in the palms of their hands Drawing on data and empirical research that cross many fields and continents authors Valkenburg and Piotrowski examine the role of media in the lives of children from birth through adolescence addressing the complex issues of how media affect the young and what adults can do to encourage responsible use in an age of selfies Twitter Facebook and Instagram This important study looks at both the sunny and the dark side of media use by today's youth including why and how their preferences change throughout childhood whether digital gaming is harmful or helpful the effects of placing tablets and smartphones in the hands of toddlers the susceptibility of young people to online advertising the legitimacy of parental concerns about media multitasking and
