

Cellular Respiration: Understanding Energy

Energy and Cellular Respiration

Energy is the ability to do work. In biology, energy is often measured in kilocalories (kcal). Cellular respiration is the process by which cells break down glucose to produce energy. The overall equation for cellular respiration is:

$$C_6H_{12}O_6 + 6O_2 \rightarrow 6CO_2 + 6H_2O + \text{Energy}$$

The energy produced during cellular respiration is used to power various cellular processes, such as muscle contraction, active transport, and biosynthesis. The energy is stored in the form of ATP (Adenosine Triphosphate), which is the primary energy currency of the cell.

Cellular respiration occurs in three main stages: glycolysis, the Krebs cycle, and the electron transport chain. Glycolysis occurs in the cytoplasm and breaks down glucose into pyruvate. The Krebs cycle occurs in the mitochondria and further breaks down pyruvate into carbon dioxide. The electron transport chain occurs in the inner mitochondrial membrane and uses electrons from the Krebs cycle to produce ATP.
