The Experience Machine Gloria Sutton,2015-02-20 An argument that the collaborative multimedia projects produced by Stan VanDerBeek in the 1960s and 1970s anticipate contemporary new media and participatory art practices In 1965 the experimental filmmaker Stan VanDerBeek 1927 1984 unveiled his Movie Drome made from the repurposed top of a grain silo VanDerBeek envisioned Movie Drome as the prototype for a communications system a global network of Movie Dromes linked to orbiting satellites that would store and transmit images With networked two way communication Movie Dromes were meant to ameliorate technology s alienating impulse In The Experience Machine Gloria Sutton views VanDerBeek known mostly for his experimental animated films as a visual artist committed to the radical aesthetic sensibilities he developed during his studies at Black Mountain College She argues that VanDerBeek s collaborative multimedia projects of the 1960s and 1970s sometimes characterized as Expanded Cinema with their emphases on transparency of process and audience engagement anticipate contemporary art s new media installation and participatory practices VanDerBeek saw Movie Drome not as pure cinema but as a communication tool an experience machine In her close reading of the work Sutton argues that Movie Drome can be understood as a programmable interface She describes the immersive experience of Movie Drome which emphasized multi sensory experience over the visual display strategies deployed in the work the Poemfield computer generated short films and VanDerBeek s interest unique for the time in telecommunications and computer processing as a future model for art production Sutton argues that visual art as a direct form of communication is a feedback mechanism which turns on a set of relations not a technology

Cold War Confrontations Jack Masey, Conway Lloyd Morgan, 2008-10-02 World's Fairs and International Exhibitions have always had a political as well as a commercial and cultural context This was particularly true during the Cold War when America and the Soviet Union used architecture and design to represent their opposing political ideologies Jack Masey served with the United States Information Agency from 1951 to 1979 for many years as Director of Design This important new book draws on his recollections and extensive new illustrative material to detail the significant role played by architects and designers in shaping America's image during the cultural Cold War Proceedings of the ACSA Annual Meeting Association of Collegiate Schools of Architecture, 2005 Design Outlaws on the Ecological Frontier Chris Zelov, 2000 In Design Outlaws Christopher Zelov, Phil Cousineau and Brian Danitz have gathered together the interviews of over twenty of the leading designers and architects from their award-winning documentary film Ecological Design: Inventing the Future. This far-reaching collection is lavishly illustrated and will inspire both the professional and the general reader alike Books in Print, 1986 Newsart, 1981 The Publishers' Trade List Annual, 1985 Counterculture Green Andrew G. Kirk, 2007 For many it was more than a publication; it was a way of life. The Whole Earth Catalog billed itself as Access to Tools and it grew from a Bay Area blip to a national phenomenon catering to hippies, do-it-yourselfers, and anyone interested in self-sufficiency independent of mainstream America, now known as living off the grid. In recovering the history of the Catalog's unique brand of environmentalism, historian Kirk recounts how Stewart Brand and the Point Foundation promoted a philosophy of pragmatic environmentalism that celebrated technological achievement, human ingenuity, and sustainable living. Kirk shows us that Whole Earth was more than a mere counterculture fad. At a time when many of these ideas were seen as heretical to a predominantly wilderness-based movement, it became a critical forum for environmental alternatives and a model for how complicated ecological ideas could be presented in a hopeful and even humorous way.
