

Chapter 4: Algebraic Expressions and Equations

Algebraic expressions and equations are fundamental tools in mathematics. They allow us to represent relationships between variables and constants. In this chapter, we will explore how to simplify, solve, and manipulate these expressions and equations. We will start with basic algebraic operations and move on to more complex topics like factoring and solving systems of equations.

4.1. Simplifying Algebraic Expressions

The first step in working with algebraic expressions is simplifying them. This involves combining like terms and using the distributive property. For example, the expression $3x + 2x - 5 + 4$ can be simplified to $5x - 1$. We will learn how to identify like terms and how to apply the distributive property to expressions with parentheses.

Another important skill is factoring. Factoring involves breaking down a complex expression into simpler factors. This is useful for solving equations and simplifying fractions. We will explore various factoring techniques, including finding the greatest common factor and using the difference of two squares.

Understanding the relationship between algebraic expressions and their graphs is also crucial. We will learn how to graph linear equations and how to interpret the slope and y-intercept of a line. This will help us visualize the solutions to algebraic problems and understand the behavior of different functions.

Finally, we will discuss how to solve systems of equations. This involves finding the values of variables that satisfy multiple equations simultaneously. We will explore both graphical and algebraic methods for solving these systems.
