

CHAPTER 1

MEAT INSPECTION PROCEDURES

The objectives of meat inspection programme are twofold:

- a. To ensure that only apparently healthy, physiologically normal animals are slaughtered for human consumption and that abnormal animals are separated and dealt with accordingly.
- b. To ensure that meat from animals is free from disease, wholesome and of no risk to human health.

These objectives are achieved by antemortem and postmortem inspection procedures and by hygienic dressing with minimum contamination. Whenever appropriate the Hazard Analysis Critical Control Point (HACCP) principles should be used: The inspection procedures should be appropriate to the spectrum and prevalence of diseases and defects present in the particular class of livestock being inspected using the principles of risk assessment.

ANTEMORTEM AND POST MORTEM INSPECTION OF FOOD ANIMALS

GENERAL PRINCIPLES

Antemortem Inspection

Some of the major objectives of antemortem inspection are as follows:

- to screen all animals destined to slaughter.
- to ensure that animals are properly rested and that proper clinical information, which will assist in the disease diagnosis and judgement, is obtained.
- to reduce contamination on the killing floor by separating the dirty animals and condemning the diseased animals if required by regulation.
- to ensure that injured animals or those with pain and suffering receive emergency slaughter and that animals are treated humanely.
- to identify reportable animal diseases to prevent killing floor contamination.
- to identify sick animals and those treated with antibiotics, chemotherapeutic agents, insecticides and pesticides.
- to require and ensure the cleaning and disinfection of trucks used to transport livestock.

Both sides of an animal should be examined at rest and in motion. Antemortem examination should be done within 24 hours of slaughter and repeated if slaughter has been delayed over a day.

Spread hogs and animals affected with extensive bruising or fractures require emergency slaughter. Animals showing clinical signs of disease should be held for veterinary examination and judgement. They are treated as "suspects" and should be segregated from the healthy animals. The disease and management history should be recorded and reported on an A/M inspection card. Other information

Manual On Meat Inspection For Developing Countries :

Manual on Meat Inspection for Developing Countries Drago Carl Herenda, P. G. Chambers, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1994-01-01

Pastoralism in the New Millennium Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2001-01-01 Pastoralism refers to the type of farming system which uses extensive grazing on grasslands for livestock production This type of farming covers 25 per cent of the world's land area and supports 20 million households It makes substantial contributions to the economies of developing countries although agricultural encroachment conflict and drought continue to erode this way of life This publication considers key policy issues and trends involved in attempts to improve the livelihoods of pastoralist families and communities

Goose Production Roger B. Buckland, Gérard Guy, 2002-01-01 This publication aims to provide guidance on sustainable goose production systems that are based on the natural physiological and behavioural advantages of the goose These advantages include the fact that they can consume and digest large amounts of high fibre and low quality feed they are easy to manage and their rapid growth renders them one of the most efficient sources for meat production In addition feathers down and fatty liver are valuable by products while their strong territorial instinct makes them very effective guards As selective feeders geese have been used for weed control in a wide range of crops All aspects of goose production are discussed in this book including feeding and nutrition housing general husbandry flock health and breeding Regional differences in production practices are also described

Good Practices in Planning and Management of Integrated Commercial Poultry Production in South Asia R. Prabakaran, 2003-01-01 This publication reviews all aspects of poultry production in South Asia including layer production for eggs and broilers for meat Information is given on feeding and nutrition housing and general husbandry as well as on flock health Regional specificity always exists but this type of production also shows the many similarities in other parts of the world with regard to potential and constraints

Ostrich Production Systems M. M. Shanawany, John Dingle, 1999

Village Chicken Production Systems in Rural Africa Aichi J. Kitalyi, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1998-01-01 The poultry production systems of Africa are mainly based on the scavenging indigenous chickens found in virtually all villages and households in rural Africa These systems are characterized by low output per bird Nevertheless over 70 percent of the poultry products and 20 percent of animal protein intake in most African countries come from this sector Therefore increased rural poultry production would result in a positive impact on household food security both in increased dietary intake and in income generation This study coincided with the World Food Summit held at FAO Rome from 13 to 17 November 1996 where delegations committed their governments and civil society to a global attack on food insecurity and poverty Poultry like other short cycle animal stock is viewed by the FAO Special Programme for Food Security SPFS as a crucial element in the struggle for sustained food production and poverty alleviation The guidelines provided in this study are particularly pertinent to those countries participating in the SPFS where village chicken production will have a substantial impact on increased household food security and gender equity Foreword The Technology of Making Cheese from Camel Milk (Camelus Dromedarius)

J.-P. Ramet, Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 2001-01-01 Research has shown that the camel is the most efficient domestic animal for converting vegetative matter into work milk and meat Camel milk is already used for human consumption in its fresh or fermented forms or as butter but only rarely as cheese Camel milk is more technically difficult to process than milk from other domestic animals and some researchers have even claimed that camel milk cheese would be impossible to produce However if normal cheese making procedures are adapted to camel milk's particular characteristics satisfactory cheeses can be made The technology of making cheese from camel milk describes the composition of camel milk compares it with other milks and explains how it can be used to make cheese Livestock

Keeping in Urban Areas Hans Schiere, Rein van der Hoek, 2001-01-01 Livestock play an important but variable role in both rural and urban societies At the request and with the support of the Japanese Government FAO has compiled experiences of livestock keeping from different parts of the world categorized by production systems to make it easier for interested people to select ideas for their own conditions This document presents a sample of such technologies intended for livestock keeping in urban and peri urban areas It describes the livestock production system in traditional sectors and identifies constraints Suggestions for improving production in the livestock sector are given and a literature list is included for further reference

A Technology Review D. J. Alexander, Jonathan G. Bell, Robyn G. Alders, 2004-01-01 Previously released in June 2004 and temporarily withdrawn Now available Keeping poultry contributes substantially to household food security throughout the developing world One of the principal constraints to increasing small scale poultry production is Newcastle Disease This acute viral disease can typically kill up to 80 percent of unprotected poultry in rural areas and is found throughout the developing world This technology review presents the latest understanding of Newcastle Disease its characteristics epidemiology symptoms and control It will be of practical value to state and private veterinarians and to all those involved with rural poultry production who wish to control this disease Developing National Emergency Prevention Systems for Transboundary Animal Diseases Alberto M. R. Dávila, Roberto Aguilar M. S. Silva, 1997 Revista Mundial de Zootecnia, 1996 Proceedings of the First Internet Conference on Salivarian Trypanosomes Roberto Aguilar M. S. Silva, Alberto M. R. Dávila, 1997 The first Internet Conference on Salivarian Trypanosomes was held from 9 to 14 december 1996 initiated by the Brazilian Enterprise for Research in Agriculture EMBRAPA In view of the economic importance of trypanosomiasis in animal production worldwide and particularly in developing countries in the tropics the meeting attracted great attention and a number of contributions of high standard were received. The papers presented to the conference are reproduced in these proceedings. They cover a wide range of topics concerning the diagnosis, epidemiology and control of trypanosome diseases and their impact on agricultural production. Of particular note is an account of the recent introduction of Trypanosoma vivax into Brazil and Bolivia and its subsequent spread through areas of high livestock densities. This presentation, as supported by others, highlights the growing need for a greater understanding of the epidemiology of diseases in general. Several papers illustrate how recent progress in the development of molecular biology may offer the potential to improve the diagnosis of trypanosome infections and may also open new avenues of research for novel approaches to control and immunization.

Prevention and Control of Transboundary Animal Diseases Food and Agriculture Organization of the United Nations, 1997 The objectives of FAO's Special Programme EMPRES i.e. Emergency Prevention System for Transboundary Animal and Plant Pests and Diseases which complements the Special Programme on Food Security are in conformity with the World Food Summit Plan of Action. The Livestock Diseases Component of EMPRES has set up an international panel of experts to provide technical advice and review activities of the programme on a regular basis in the form of expert consultations. This publication is a report of the first expert consultation on the subject

Mixed Crop-livestock Farming Hans Schiere, Loes Kater, 2001 At the request and with the support of the Japanese Government, FAO has compiled experiences of livestock keeping from different parts of the world, categorized by production systems, to make it easier for interested people to select ideas for their own conditions. This document presents a sample of technologies for livestock keeping in rural mixed crop-livestock farming systems, with emphasis on describing the livestock production systems in the traditional sector and identifying constraints.
