Question 1a

An online survey of 1000 college students reported the percentage of students who visit at least one college site each year. The resulting relative frequency is shown.

If the population were a simple random sample of 1000 college students, what would be an estimate of the standard deviation of the percentage of students who visit at least one college site each year?

Question 1b

The survey also reported that 10% of students reported that the percentage of students who visit at least one college site each year is greater than 90%. Assuming that the 10% of students who report that 10% of students visit at least one college site each year are representative of all college students, how would the distribution of percentages of students who report that the percentage of students who visit at least one college site each year is greater than 90% compare to the distribution of percentages of students who report that the percentage of students who visit at least one college site each year is between 80% and 90%?

The interval between 80% and 90% is 10% greater than the interval between 10% and 80% of high school seniors who are attending college after high school. This means that 10% of students who report that 10% of students who visit at least one college site each year has the percentage of students who report that 10% of students who visit at least one college site each year is greater than 90%?
